

Carter Continues Washington Meets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter, after meeting with President Ford, is planning discussions with leaders of Congress.

Carter's second day of meetings on his first trip here since the election were on Capitol Hill today, but spokesmen for legislators he planned to see said they were unsure about discussion topics.

Carter spent 75 minutes with President Ford on Monday and said afterwards: "There cannot have been a better demonstration of unity and friendship and goodwill than has been shown to me by President Ford since the election."

"The transition will be one which will be conducive to peace in our own nation and peace around the world," Carter said after an Oval Office conference on the transition to a Carter administration.

Carter, staying at Blair House, the government guest house across Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House, also met with several members of Ford's Cabinet.

At the Capitol on Monday there was some mystery about what Carter planned to discuss at meetings he requested with House and Senate committee chairmen, the House International Relations Committee, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and with GOP congressional leaders.

Vice President-elect Walter F. Mondale was to join in the meetings. The congressmen are among those whose support Carter will need if he hopes to assure success for his legislative program.

A Democratic staff member said there was no agenda for the session with House committee chairmen, but that Carter probably would discuss government reorganization, foreign policy and economic problems.

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said Monday night the meetings were requested by Carter to make contact "with the people on the Hill, giving them a chance to get to know" the incoming president.

Powell said earlier that Carter wanted to talk with the foreign affairs panels to advance his plans for a bipartisan foreign policy in which Congress would play a greater role.

After their meeting, Ford and Carter walked on the lawn and Ford told reporters "the transition is working smoothly."

"It has been a real pleasure and a privilege for Mrs. Ford and myself to have Gov. Carter and Mrs. Carter as our guests," he said.

While the President and President-elect talked, Ford's wife, Betty, showed Carter's wife, Rosalynn, around the White House.

Earlier, Mrs. Carter visited the principal of Stevens School, the Washington public school that nine-year-old Amy Carter might attend.

Carter thanked Ford "for the gracious way in which he has welcomed me to meet with his heads of departments to teach me about the future responsibilities which I will assume."

Powell said Carter described the meeting as "a very substantive discussion." Powell said "a good part of the time" was spent on foreign affairs.

Thieves Bust Safes At 2 County Schools

Thieves, described as "no back alley crooks" by Pickaway County Sheriff's Detective Don Thompson, chiseled their way into safes at the Westfall High School and Walnut Twp. Elementary School last night, escaping with undetermined amounts of cash.

And, in an apparently unrelated incident, a gang of crooks collected about $13 in change at the Saltcreek Elementary School.

"They knew what they were doing," said Det. Thompson, who believes the same gang robbed the safes at both schools. Apparently matching chisel-type marks were found on both safes, he said.

The gang is "probably" the same that pulled off a similar robbery at Westfall High School about a year ago, and the same that robbed Walnut School of petty cash about two weeks ago, he said.

At Westfall, the robbers broke a window to the attached greenhouse to gain entry and broke a door lock to get into the main office.

They chiseled a hole in the side of the concrete block wall safe in the office and then were able to work the door handle from the inside.

Nothing else in the school appeared to be missing, Det. Thompson said. Amount of cash missing will not be known until an inventory can be taken by school officials.

Det. Thompson said the school and safe were entered in the same manner about a year ago. That case remains unsolved.

Despite some minor vandalism "to throw us off," Det. Thompson feels the same gang took an undetermined amount of cash from the safe at the Walnut Twp. School.

He said the thieves broke into a milk dispensing machine in the school and tossed the empty cartons to the floor after drinking the contents in an ap-

53 Per Cent Of Prep Seniors Tried 'Pot'

Marijuana Use Heavy

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than half of the Bicentennial class of high school seniors tried marijuana and three out of 10 were users at graduation time, according to government surveys.

The National Institute on Drug Abuse surveyed 17,000 high school seniors in 130 schools last spring and found that 53 per cent had tried marijuana, a 5 per cent increase over the class of 1975.

The survey, released today, said 32 per cent regarded themselves as current marijuana users.

An identical 53 per cent of persons aged 18 to 25 had tried marijuana, according to another institute survey, and 25 per cent were current users. It showed 22 per cent of 12-to-17-year-olds had experimented with marijuana and 15 per cent were regular or occasional users.

Although cigarettes and alcohol were used more frequently than marijuana by young adults, 57 per cent of high school seniors thought there was a serious health risk for cigarettes while only 40 per cent felt the same way about marijuana.

The findings indicated the use of LSD has remained virtually constant the last four years, and that abuse of heroin and psychotherapeutic drugs has been unchanged the last two years.

The rate of cocaine use was the same this year as in 1975.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, the institute's director, said comparison of the surveys show "an apparent stabilization in drug use and the attitudes toward drugs in general."

"The public, including youth, clearly recognizes the addictive effects of tobacco and alcohol and has very negative attitudes toward the use of all illicit drugs except marijuana," he said.

"Although drug abuse continues to be widespread in every region of the country, we are seeing some slight downward trends for amphetamines, LSD and barbituates. Marijuana is the only drug showing a definite upward trend."

Two other government-sponsored surveys released at the same time showed that drug abuse costs the nation between $8.4 billion and $12.2 billion a year, more than tobacco smoking, but less than alcoholism.

More than 60 per cent of the cost of drug abuse was attributed to heroin abuse. The median costs of $10.3 billion in fiscal 1975 included medical, judicial, law enforcement, criminal and employment expenses and debts. The study estimated that tobacco use costs $6.7 billion and alcohol and alcoholism cost $32 billion.

BUILDING COMES DOWN — Crews worked Saturday and Sunday to tear down the old Courtwright Building, 112 N. Court St., an historic landmark which was constructed in 1860 and featured an elegant wrought iron observation porch railing. Plans for utilization of site are uncertain at this time, although the lot is owned by the First National Bank. The basement, and an abandoned coal bin under the sidewalk will be filled and allowed to settle. The building was used as an office for a court judge, according to historical records. More recently, it was the location of Timmons Shoe Repair Shop, and served as headquarters for Pickaway County Republicans prior to the Nov. 2 general election.

GOP Seeks New Chairman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Divided and then defeated, Republicans are going to have to get their act together in a hurry now that Mary Louise Smith has announced she is resigning as GOP national chairman.

They have eight weeks to agree on a successor or line up sides for a fight. They not only need a chairman, they need somebody, or some group, to speak for the party on matters of national policy.

Mrs. Smith, who took the party's top post 26 months ago at the request of President Ford, announced on Monday that she will resign upon the selection of a new chairman. That will come at a Republican National Committee meeting on Jan. 14 and 15.

Neither Ford nor Ronald Reagan, principals in the 1976 fight for GOP power, had any public comment on her departure or possible successor.

Associates said Ford had indicated to Mrs. Smith that he would prefer to have her remain at the committee. Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller asked her to stay, as did other administration leaders.

But at the same time, the conservative wing of the party, where Reagan's power is based, gave signals that she should go.

Although Reagan declined comment, Pete Hannaford, an aide, noted that it is customary in both parties for the national chairman to resign after an election defeat. Hannaford said he did not know whether Reagan would make any recommendations on a successor, "but he will obviously be interested in who is selected."

While some conservatives have said Reagan should be the chairman, the former California governor has said he doesn't want the job.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Mrs. Smith met with Ford last Thursday to inform him of her decision. He declined to discuss Ford's role in the naming of a successor, but said Ford "certainly considers himself to be the head of the Republican party."

That's what the impending fight is about, for Reagan's conservative followers do not agree.

Mrs. Smith's timing surprised some party professionals, which may account for the initial silence from the two top GOP figures.

One knowledgeable Republican said she had not been expected to step aside so soon. Mrs. Smith, the wife of a Des Moines, Iowa, physician, was elected to a two-year term at the Republican National Convention in August. Had she chosen to remain, it would have taken a two-thirds vote of the national committee to oust her.

Angola Wins U.N. Seat; U.S. Abstains

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Angola's Marxist regime is entering the United Nations following withdrawal of the American veto that blocked the new African nation five months ago.

Ambassador William W. Scranton told the Security Council that the United States decided not to veto Angola's application for membership again Monday "out of respect for the sentiments expressed by our African friends."

However, he said the United States was abstaining from the council vote on the Angolan application because of the continuing presence in the country of large "Cuban occupation forces."

U.S. diplomats said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger changed course in the hope that the Angolans would influence black Rhodesian leaders to be more amenable to compromise at the Geneva negotiations to arrange the transition to black majority rule in Rhodesia. Angola is one of the five so-called "front-line" black African states that are believed to have influence with the black Rhodesians.

The council voted 13-0 to recommend that the General Assembly vote the former Portuguese colony into the world organization. Assembly approval of the recommendation is certain.

China did not participate in the vote to express its disapproval of Soviet involvement in Angola.

The United States vetoed the Angolan application on June 23 to protest the continuing presence in the country of the estimated 12,000-15,000 Cuban troops who helped Agostinho Neto's Popular Movement, the MPLA, defeat two nationalist factions backed by the United States and South Africa after Portugal gave the African colony independence a year ago.

Canadians Eye Bribery Scandal

OTTAWA, Canada (AP) — An official report has questioned payments totaling $10.5 million by a government company to promote the sales of nuclear power plants to Argentina and South Korea.

The report by Auditor-General J.L. Macdonell to the House of Commons Monday said Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL) was unable to supply "adequate documentation" of how the money was spent.

The corporation confirmed that it made the questioned payments of $2.4 million in Argentina and $8.1 million in South Korea. It said it did not even know who received the money in Argentina.

A spokesman for AECL said the agency had no knowledge that the money was used to bribe foreign officials, as officials of the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. have admitted doing in Japan and other countries. The auditor-general said he would not speculate on the purpose of the payments.

The auditor's report said AECL paid a total of $18 million to foreign concerns to promote its sale of a $514-million nuclear generating station to South Korea and a $600-million nuclear station to Argentina.

The corporation paid $15.4 million for the services of an agent in the South Korean deal between 1972 and last January, the report said. Of that amount, $8.1 million was "supported only by general statements without details," the report said.

The agent was United Development Inc., a worldwide firm with headquarters in Tel Aviv, Israel, AECL said.

In the Argentine sale, an AECL spokesman said, commercial and promotional work was handled by the Italian firm Italmimpianti. The spokesman said Italmimpianti billed AECL for $2.4 million as its share of the cost of an agent, but he said AECL "was not privy" to the name of the person or company involved.

J. L. Gray, who was AECL president in 1974 and has since left the job, told a reporter he could not comment directly on the Korean sale because he did not have records with him. But he said overseas agents are usually needed "to bring us the contract and help with servicing later."

State Faces Nursing Home Fund Crisis

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Because the state plan for assisting nursing homes has apparently been judged unacceptable, the Ohio Department of Public Welfare may owe the federal government $60 million, the State Controlling Board has learned.

The State Controlling Board has released $2.2 million to the Ohio Department of Natural Resources for planning funds for the proposed Deer Creek Lodge and Golf Course.

The lodge is to be located near the Harding Cabin and the golf course will be on the north side of the lake near the Yankeetown Dawson Road and Clark Run.

"We've received indications that they will not approve the state plan for reimbursement" of nursing homes, William Stone, welfare department fiscal officer, told the board. The $60 million includes money already paid to the state and future federal reimbursements that would be cut off, Stone said.

Puzzled legislators on the control board decided to attempt to set up a meeting with Clyde V. Downing, regional commissioner of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, based in Chicago.

In other action, board members voted to approve purchase of some 200 acres of land from four different owners for addition to Malabar State Park near Mansfield.

Under temporary state law, the welfare department has permitted nursing homes a "profit allowance" over and above their actual cost of operation. The plan applied to homes which receive state financial assistance.

When he vetoed a daily $1.50 per patient nursing home profit allowance incorporated in a Medicaid reform bill last month, Gov. James A. Rhodes cited a statement by Downing that the state formula conflicted with federal regulations. Rhodes' veto was overridden by the legislature on Nov. 9.

The board, controlled by Democrats, deferred a request by the Ohio welfare agency to change the formula and decided to arrange a meeting with the federal official sometime next week.

"So we're spending state bucks that are not going to be reimbursed as contemplated," concluded control board president Robert Howarth. "We're really in a damned if we do, damned if we don't position."

"I'm going to call this no more than a threat," added House Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville. "You are asking the control board to remove what the legislature has done."

Stone said the state agency dropped the profit allowance in October payments to nursing homes. State policy for the remainder of the year apparently will depend on the meeting with Downing and subsequent action by the control board or legislature.

The combined sale price for the Malabar property was $305,000, up $1,000 because the option on one parcel expired during two previous delays by the board in granting the Department of Natural Resources authority to buy the land.

The board has delayed the purchases for more than a month because an audit is underway on the state operation of the 635-acre farm. Board members admitted they were uncertain of the details or purpose of the audit by state Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson.

The controllers approved a grant of $131,000 for planning, operation and equipment costs at the Ohio State (Continued on Page 16)

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks lost about a point in the early going. But gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was active. The market's attention seemed to be focused on a meeting of 10 Arab oil ministers in Kuwait to discuss their position on a price-increase decision scheduled for Dec. 15.

Iraq's oil minister said his country insists on a 25 per cent increase in the oil price, while a spokesman for some other members of the group called for a more moderate approach.

Today's early prices included Texas Oil & Gas, down 1/4 at 25 1/4; Utah International, off 1/4 at 63 1/4; and American Telephone, up 1/4 at 61 1/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average gained 7.07 to 955.87.

Advances outnumbered declines by close to a 5-2 margin on the NYSE, and the exchange's composite index rose .35 to 54.96.

Big Board volume came to 20.93 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .20 at 100.24.

Frigidaire Automatic ICE CUBE MAKER

SCANLAN CO., INC. SALES AND SERVICE 474-6157

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration today proposed requiring warning labels on most aerosol cans containing fluorocarbons, as a prelude to a ban in the future.

The proposal would affect primarily spray deodorants, antiperspirants, hair sprays, colognes and fragrances.

The spray cans would have to carry the legend: "Warning. Contains a chlorofluorocarbon that may harm the public health and environment by reducing ozone in the upper atmosphere."

Meanwhile, the Consumer Product Safety Commission on Monday took the first step to ban fluorocarbon aerosols, saying they "present an unreasonable risk of injury to consumers."

The FDA claims it has regulatory jurisdiction over about 80 per cent of the fluorocarbon sprays on the U.S. market, or about one billion cans a year at the present sales volume.

The FDA said non-prescription drug sprays for bronchial and asthma and all prescription drug sprays would be exempt from the present labeling action, pending review of whether alternative gas propellants are suitable for those products.

Public comments on the proposed warning labels will be accepted for the next 60 days. The FDA said the proposal would take effect 30 days after a final order was published in the Federal Register.

"The purpose of this warning is to encourage self-restraint by consumers in purchasing aerosol products containing chlorofluorocarbons and to encourage them to seek alternative products," said FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt.

"Our goal is to reduce consumer use of chlorofluorocarbons in aerosols by voluntary action until such aerosols are phased out by mandatory regulation," he said.

"This action is unique and should represent the first of a worldwide series of actions by all nations to limit the release of chlorofluorocarbons into the atmosphere. Given the longterm nature of the hazard, the way in which we are going about the phase-out and warning labels on aerosols will be to the consumer's maximum benefit," Schmidt said.

Talk-Show Host Foils Suicide Bid

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — As radio talk-show host Brian Lehrer was about to go off the air, he decided to take one more phone call. It turned out to be a lifesaver.

The young man who was calling told him matter-of-factly over the air that he was about to commit suicide.

"We were talking about other stuff when I made some reference to two weeks from now," Lehrer recalled Monday, "and he said, 'I'm not going to be around then.' I asked him if he was going away, and he said, 'I'm committing suicide.'"

The youth, Matthew Joslin, 19, later attempted to hang himself, but Lehrer's stalling and action by a listener enabled police to reach Joslin in time. They rushed him, unconscious, to a nearby hospital where he was reported in good condition today.

The call came at 2:50 a.m. Monday, just before signoff at WQBK in suburban Glenmont. Lehrer played the sign-off song "Goodnight, Irene," and then kept Joslin on the phone for an hour after going off the air, time enough for an alert listener to call police.

"We talked about music, and just general bull," said the bearded, long-haired announcer. "I was trying to keep him going ... I wanted to get his name and town, and I finally did."

Lehrer got Joslin to tell him his name and his address, a residence in Pittstown in neighboring Rensselaer County.

Lehrer said the youth mentioned troubles with a girl friend and said that he did not know the meaning of life.

"He was impressed that somebody — me — was taking time to care, to take an interest," Lehrer said. "I guess he just wanted some expression of love. Also, he was impressed that listeners were calling up about him."

"But at 10 minutes before four, he said he was going to hang himself and hung up."

Gasoline Controls Could Be Ended Before Inauguration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration, approaching its final days in office, will try to end controls on the price of gasoline, contending the move will have no immediate impact for motorists.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb said, "our preliminary evidence indicates there will be no adverse effect on price or supply" of gasoline and decontrol would "restore some measure of competition back into the system."

A spokesman for the FEA said Monday, "There probably would be no effect at the gasoline pump. It's a very competitive market and the oil companies now are charging less than they could under the controls."

The proposal, however, may cause resentment among Democrats in Congress who feel energy decisions should be left to the new administration of President-elect Jimmy Carter.

Either the Senate or House could block decontrol by a resolution opposing it. Democrats control both houses by margins of roughly 2 to 1.

A spokesman for the FEA said that public hearings would be held on the proposal in December before it is formally submitted to Congress when the recess ends on Jan. 4.

Congress would have 15 days to block any effort to remove the controls. If Congress fails to act, the ceilings would be lifted.

The FEA spokesman said the administration favors decontrol because "we're interested in less regulation. Let the marketplace control it."

He said the administration feels that the controls, which were installed to prevent price gouging after the Arab oil embargo in 1973, are no longer needed.

The American Automobile Association reported Monday that the price of regular gasoline is averaging about 61.5 cents per gallon, premium gasoline 65.8 cents per gallon and unleaded 63.8 cents. Generally, the prices at the pump have been a few cents below the maximums permitted under the Federal controls.

Under the current law, gasoline marketers and refiners cannot raise prices except to pass along to customers actual increases in crude oil or other petroleum costs on a dollar-for-dollar basis.

The law permits the president to remove the controls, unless Congress opposes it, if he believes that competition in the market would "provide adequate protection for the consumer."

Light Snow In Mid-U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Light snow fell in scattered areas of the nation's midsection today, from the lower Great Lakes to the Appalachians, and in Minnesota, parts of the Dakotas and Colorado.

Hazardous driving conditions were reported in northeast Ohio, where locally heavy snow squalls threatened to bring one to three-inch snowfalls by dawn.

Lake shore warnings also continued along Lake Michigan in Indiana and extreme southwest Michigan. Beach and bank erosion warnings also continued along the southeastern shores of Lake Erie.

The weather was mostly tranquil in the rest of the nation, with clear skies from the southern Atlantic coast through the lower Mississippi Valley. Fog and low clouds were widespread over coast and western valleys of the Pacific coast states.

It was cold in the eastern two thirds of the nation, with readings in the 20s in northern sections of the central Gulf Coast states and extreme northwest Florida.

Brzezinski To Be Major Carter Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Of Jimmy Carter's many foreign policy advisers, the one virtually assured of a top job in the new administration is a university professor whose accent and scholarly demeanor invite comparisons with Henry Kissinger.

There is no indication that Carter has made up his mind, but professor

Zbigniew Brzezinski of Columbia University is regarded by Carter associates as a possible candidate for the post of National Security Council chief.

It was from that power base that Kissinger became the dominant figure in U.S. foreign policy during the Nixon years, even before he became secretary of state in 1973.

A State Department source said Brzezinski expressed interest in the NSC job while on a visit to Israel several months ago.

Reached by telephone Monday, Brzezinski declined comment on his relationship with Carter except to say that the news media had exaggerated his influence on the President-elect's campaign.

As for his future plans, he said, "This is not the time for interviews."

Carter apparently was impressed by Brzezinski's foreign policy insights offered during the political campaign. He has announced publicly he wants Brzezinski in his administration.

Kissinger and Brzezinski have much in common. Kissinger was born in Germany, Brzezinski in Poland, and both retain the accents of their European heritage. Both did graduate work at Harvard University and attracted attention through their work there and through frequent contributions to scholarly journals. Brzezinski is 48, just three years older than Kissinger was when he joined Nixon's inner circle in 1969.

But from their public statements, both Carter and Brzezinski believe that the flamboyant Kissinger approach to diplomacy should be replaced by a more conventional style.

In an article written two years ago, Brzezinski said, "What is needed is a major architectural effort rather than an acrobatic foreign policy."

Since his election, Carter has said he will not allow his national security adviser to encroach on the authority of his secretary of state.

Skeptics recall, however, that Kissinger himself said when he became NSC chief that he would engage principally in long range planning, leaving the conduct of policy to the State Department.

As it turned out, Kissinger seized effective control over the most important decisions, such as the Vietnam negotiations and the overtures to China, while Secretary of State William P. Rogers, was often kept in the dark. Kissinger served jointly as NSC chief and secretary of state from 1973 until last year, when former Air Force Gen. Brent Scowcroft took the NSC job.

One source familiar with Carter's thinking said the new NSC chief under Carter probably will not be nearly as powerful as Kissinger nor as low-profile as the incumbent, Scowcroft.

The source envisions a restoration of the type of NSC role filled by the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Andre Malraux Dies; Long French Leader

PARIS (AP) — Andre Malraux, the novelist, art historian, philosopher and Gaullist cabinet minister, died today, the French news agency Agence France Presse reported. He was 75.

Malraux entered the Creteil Hospital last Tuesday for treatment of a lung congestion. He developed a blood clot in a lung Sunday night and grew steadily worse. His doctor reported Monday that his condition was hopeless.

Malraux was one of the 20th century's most brilliant men of letters, but he was also a man of action — an explorer, archeologist, adventurer, early Communist revolutionary, a much-decorated World War II hero and a close friend and cabinet minister of President Charles De Gaulle.

His life was full of tragedy. His wealthy father committed suicide and family legend claims his grandfather did the same. His two half-brothers were killed during World War II. His wartime mistress, Josette Clotis, was killed in a train crash as France was being liberated. Their two sons died together in 1961 when their speeding sports car smashed into a tree in Central France.

A colonel in the French Resistance, Malraux faced a German execution squad in 1944. It was a cruel hoax, but the experience inspired some of his deepest insight into a theme that always haunted him: man's confrontation with death.

Malraux organized a bomber squadron for the Republican side in the Spanish civil war and flew 65 combat missions before being wounded. That war produced "L'Espeir," of "Man's Hope," the companion piece to "Man's Fate" and a vision of totalitarianism in action.

At the outbreak of World War II, he became an enlisted man in the French armored forces which also produced De Gaulle. He was captured by the Germans in 1940, escaped, joined the underground, and wrote another novel, "The Walnut Tree of Altenburg," in which the hero died on the battlefield.

He first met De Gaulle in 1944, served briefly as his information minister in 1945, then helped him organize the Gaullist party. He also wrote his monumental works on the history of world art, "The Voices of Silence" and "Metamorphosis of the Gods."

In 1959, De Gaulle installed Malraux as information minister and later named him minister for cultural affairs, a post he held 10 years. He initiated the great cleanup of Paris' grime-coated buildings, dug forgotten masterpieces out of the Louvre's cellars and placed them on view, supervised the restoration of Versailles and commissioned Marc Chagall's ceiling for the Paris Opera.

He also drew much criticism for allowing the puritanical views of De Gaulle's wife to influence him to uphold censorship of films and plays, and for allowing skyscrapers to mar the skyline of Paris.

When De Gaulle retired in 1969, Malraux withdrew from politics and devoted himself to his multivolume memoirs, called "Anti-Memoirs."

Nursing Homes Jazz Concerts Are Planned

The five member "Andre Keller Combo" initiated a series of concerts for the Pickaway County Nursing Homes, starting Monday evening at the Pickaway Manor.

Music of the 50's including Dixieland, blues, and standards were presented using funds provided by the Trust Fund of the American Federation of Musicians.

Concerts at the Circleville Manor and Brown Memorial are scheduled for November, with return engagements planned in December.

Members of the combo are Andre Keller, trumpet, banjo, and vocals; Frank Hoffman, saxophone and clarinet; John Hill of Lancaster, bass guitar; Steve Audi, lead guitar; and Raymond Nance, drums.

The Surgeon General of the Public Health Service released the report of the Surgeon General's Advisory Committee on Smoking and Health, more and more facts have been made known each year to prove that smoking cigarettes is a health hazard. . . . Some of the conclusions are that: (1) cigarette smokers tend to die at earlier ages and experience more days of disability than do comparable nonsmokers in the population; (2) deaths from lung cancer, chronic bronchitis and emphysema would not be so great; (3) excess disability from chronic respiratory and cardiovascular diseases would be reduced. . . .

Research in the field of smoking and health is continuing in this country and throughout the world. . . . It is addressed to such questions as what substances in the cigarette smoke cause damage to the body and why and precisely how these reactions occur. . . .

Plane Crash Fatal To 50

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A Greek airliner crashed in northern Greece today and all 50 persons aboard were killed, an airline spokesman said.

Police said 17 bodies had been recovered from the wreckage of the Olympic Airways YS11, a twin-engine Japanese prop-jet that crashed in mountains south of Kozani, which is 275 miles north of Athens.

"Villagers in the area said the plane burst into flames and exploded after crashing," police said.

"Our goal is to reduce consumer use of chlorofluorocarbons in aerosols by voluntary action until such aerosols are phased out by mandatory regulation," he said.

"This action is unique and should represent the first of a worldwide series of actions by all nations to limit the release of chlorofluorocarbons into the atmosphere. Given the longterm nature of the hazard, the way in which we are going about the phase-out and warning labels on aerosols will be to the consumer's maximum benefit," Schmidt said.

Talk-Show Host Foils Suicide Bid

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — As radio talk-show host Brian Lehrer was about to go off the air, he decided to take one more phone call. It turned out to be a lifesaver.

The young man who was calling told him matter-of-factly over the air that he was about to commit suicide.

"We were talking about other stuff when I made some reference to two weeks from now," Lehrer recalled Monday, "and he said, 'I'm not going to be around then.' I asked him if he was going away, and he said, 'I'm committing suicide.'"

The youth, Matthew Joslin, 19, later attempted to hang himself, but Lehrer's stalling and action by a listener enabled police to reach Joslin in time. They rushed him, unconscious, to a nearby hospital where he was reported in good condition today.

The call came at 2:50 a.m. Monday, just before signoff at WQBK in suburban Glenmont. Lehrer played the sign-off song "Goodnight, Irene," and then kept Joslin on the phone for an hour after going off the air, time enough for an alert listener to call police.

"We talked about music, and just general bull," said the bearded, long-haired announcer. "I was trying to keep him going ... I wanted to get his name and town, and I finally did."

Lehrer got Joslin to tell him his name and his address, a residence in Pittstown in neighboring Rensselaer County.

Lehrer said the youth mentioned troubles with a girl friend and said that he did not know the meaning of life.

"He was impressed that somebody — me — was taking time to care, to take an interest," Lehrer said. "I guess he just wanted some expression of love. Also, he was impressed that listeners were calling up about him."

"But at 10 minutes before four, he said he was going to hang himself and hung up."

Gasoline Controls Could Be Ended Before Inauguration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration, approaching its final days in office, will try to end controls on the price of gasoline, contending the move will have no immediate impact for motorists.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb said, "our preliminary evidence indicates there will be no adverse effect on price or supply" of gasoline and decontrol would "restore some measure of competition back into the system."

A spokesman for the FEA said Monday, "There probably would be no effect at the gasoline pump. It's a very competitive market and the oil companies now are charging less than they could under the controls."

The proposal, however, may cause resentment among Democrats in Congress who feel energy decisions should be left to the new administration of President-elect Jimmy Carter.

Either the Senate or House could block decontrol by a resolution opposing it. Democrats control both houses by margins of roughly 2 to 1.

A spokesman for the FEA said that public hearings would be held on the proposal in December before it is formally submitted to Congress when the recess ends on Jan. 4.

Congress would have 15 days to block any effort to remove the controls. If Congress fails to act, the ceilings would be lifted.

The FEA spokesman said the administration favors decontrol because "we're interested in less regulation. Let the marketplace control it."

He said the administration feels that the controls, which were installed to prevent price gouging after the Arab oil embargo in 1973, are no longer needed.

The American Automobile Association reported Monday that the price of regular gasoline is averaging about 61.5 cents per gallon, premium gasoline 65.8 cents per gallon and unleaded 63.8 cents. Generally, the prices at the pump have been a few cents below the maximums permitted under the Federal controls.

Under the current law, gasoline marketers and refiners cannot raise prices except to pass along to customers actual increases in crude oil or other petroleum costs on a dollar-for-dollar basis.

The law permits the president to remove the controls, unless Congress opposes it, if he believes that competition in the market would "provide adequate protection for the consumer."

Light Snow In Mid-U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Light snow fell in scattered areas of the nation's midsection today, from the lower Great Lakes to the Appalachians, and in Minnesota, parts of the Dakotas and Colorado.

Hazardous driving conditions were reported in northeast Ohio, where locally heavy snow squalls threatened to bring one to three-inch snowfalls by dawn.

Lake shore warnings also continued along Lake Michigan in Indiana and extreme southwest Michigan. Beach and bank erosion warnings also continued along the southeastern shores of Lake Erie.

The weather was mostly tranquil in the rest of the nation, with clear skies from the southern Atlantic coast through the lower Mississippi Valley. Fog and low clouds were widespread over coast and western valleys of the Pacific coast states.

It was cold in the eastern two thirds of the nation, with readings in the 20s in northern sections of the central Gulf Coast states and extreme northwest Florida.

Brzezinski To Be Major Carter Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Of Jimmy Carter's many foreign policy advisers, the one virtually assured of a top job in the new administration is a university professor whose accent and scholarly demeanor invite comparisons with Henry Kissinger.

There is no indication that Carter has made up his mind, but professor

Zbigniew Brzezinski of Columbia University is regarded by Carter associates as a possible candidate for the post of National Security Council chief.

It was from that power base that Kissinger became the dominant figure in U.S. foreign policy during the Nixon years, even before he became secretary of state in 1973.

A State Department source said Brzezinski expressed interest in the NSC job while on a visit to Israel several months ago.

Reached by telephone Monday, Brzezinski declined comment on his relationship with Carter except to say that the news media had exaggerated his influence on the President-elect's campaign.

As for his future plans, he said, "This is not the time for interviews." Carter apparently was impressed by Brzezinski's foreign policy insights offered during the political campaign. He has announced publicly he wants Brzezinski in his administration.

Kissinger and Brzezinski have much in common. Kissinger was born in Germany, Brzezinski in Poland, and both retain the accents of their European heritage. Both did graduate work at Harvard University and attracted attention through their work there and through frequent contributions to scholarly journals. Brzezinski is 48, just three years older than Kissinger was when he joined Nixon's inner circle in 1969.

But from their public statements, both Carter and Brzezinski believe that the flamboyant Kissinger approach to diplomacy should be replaced by a more conventional style.

In an article written two years ago, Brzezinski said, "What is needed is a major architectural effort rather than an acrobatic foreign policy."

Since his election, Carter has said he will not allow his national security adviser to encroach on the authority of his secretary of state.

Skeptics recall, however, that Kissinger himself said when he became NSC chief that he would engage principally in long range planning, leaving the conduct of policy to the State Department.

As it turned out, Kissinger seized effective control over the most important decisions, such as the Vietnam negotiations and the overtures to China, while Secretary of State William P. Rogers, was often kept in the dark. Kissinger served jointly as NSC chief and secretary of state from 1973 until last year, when former Air Force Gen. Brent Scowcroft took the NSC job.

One source familiar with Carter's thinking said the new NSC chief under Carter probably will not be nearly as powerful as Kissinger nor as low-profile as the incumbent, Scowcroft.

The source envisions a restoration of the type of NSC role filled by McGeorge Bundy, who served in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Andre Malraux Dies; Long French Leader

PARIS (AP) — Andre Malraux, the novelist, art historian, philosopher and Gaullist cabinet minister, died today, the French news agency Agence France Presse reported. He was 75.

Malraux entered the Creteil Hospital last Tuesday for treatment of a lung congestion. He developed a blood clot in a lung Sunday night and grew steadily worse. His doctor reported Monday that his condition was hopeless.

Malraux was one of the 20th century's most brilliant men of letters, but he was also a man of action — an explorer, archeologist, adventurer, early Communist revolutionary, a much-decorated World War II hero and a close friend and cabinet minister of President Charles De Gaulle.

His life was full of tragedy. His wealthy father committed suicide and family legend claims his grandfather died the same. His two half-brothers were killed during World War II. His wartime mistress, Josette Clotis, was killed in a train crash as France was being liberated. Their two sons died together in 1961 when their speeding sports car smashed into a tree in Central France.

A colonel in the French Resistance, Malraux faced a German execution squad in 1944. It was a cruel hoax, but the experience inspired some of his deepest insight into a theme that always haunted him: man's confrontation with death.

Malraux organized a bomber squadron for the Republican side in the Spanish civil war and flew 65 combat missions before being wounded. That war produced "L'Esprit," of "Man's Hope," the companion piece to "Man's Fate" and a vision of totalitarianism in action.

At the outbreak of World War II, he became an enlisted man in the French armored forces which also produced De Gaulle. He was captured by the Germans in 1940, escaped, joined the underground, and wrote another novel, "The Walnut Tree of Altenburg," in which the hero died on the battlefield.

He first met De Gaulle in 1944, served briefly as his information minister in 1945, then helped him organize the Gaullist party. He also wrote his monumental works on the history of world art, "The Voices of Silence" and "Metamorphosis of the Gods."

In 1959, De Gaulle installed Malraux as information minister and later named him minister for cultural affairs, a post he held 10 years. He initiated the great cleanup of Paris' grime-coated buildings, dug forgotten masterpieces out of the Louvre's cellars and placed them on view, supervised the restoration of Versailles and commissioned Marc Chagall's ceiling for the Paris Opera.

He also drew much criticism for allowing the puritanical views of De Gaulle's wife to influence him to uphold censorship of films and plays, and for allowing skyscrapers to mar the skyline of Paris.

When De Gaulle retired in 1969, Malraux withdrew from politics and devoted himself to his multivolume memoirs, called "Anti-Memoirs."

Cold Temperatures Increase Gas Usage

Unusually cold temperatures that have prevailed throughout Ohio in recent weeks are resulting in unseasonably high gas bills this month for many Columbia Gas customers.

And gas company officials warn these higher bills may be only a prelude to what's in store later this winter as a result of actual and anticipated increases in gas rates.

Calvin Danford, manager of Columbia Gas in the Circleville area, said temperatures throughout Ohio during the past few weeks have averaged 50 to 60 per cent colder than normal and two to three times colder than last year when the weather was unusually mild.

"This means our customers have been using two to three times more gas this year to keep their homes at the same temperature they did last year. The result is substantially higher gas bills," Danford said.

Looking ahead to the coming winter, the gas company warns that customers can anticipate gas bills that are 30 or more per cent higher than those received last winter, possibly even higher if the long range projection of the National Weather Service for colder than normal temperatures over the next few months is accurate.

"Overall, last year, most gas bills were not as high as they might have been because we had an extremely mild winter that averaged about nine per cent warmer than normal," Danford explained. "In addition, since last November we have had natural gas rate increases of about 16 per cent and are anticipating a still undetermined, but sizeable additional increase sometime after the first of the year as the result of a recent Federal Power Commission decision.

"We feel that as a result of these factors many of our customers may receive bills this winter that are 30 per cent higher than those for the same period last year. The increase will be even larger if colder than normal weather occurs," the gas company manager said.

Danford said many customers are finding that the best way to help offset the rising cost of all forms of energy is to reduce usage through conservation.

"For example, setting thermostats at 67 degrees instead of 72 degrees will reduce consumption 15 to 18 per cent according to national studies," he said.

Additional tips on how to reduce gas usage through conservation can be obtained by asking for free booklets at local gas company offices.

Italy Imports Wine From California

WASHINGTON (AP) — The idea of Italy importing wine from California sounds almost as absurd as Kansas buying wheat from Russia but that's exactly what the Agriculture Department says might happen.

Two U.S. wine producers exhibited their wares at the annual Vini d'Italia show in Verona, Italy, this fall, Sept. 19-26. The department's Foreign Agricultural Service said today that during the show more than 150 inquiries were received about the possibility of importing U.S. wines.

Officials said that "any toehold in this market, of course, would represent a breakthrough" since Italy is the world's leading wine exporter.

In 1975, for example, Italy sold $466 million worth of wine overseas, including $56 million of it to U.S. buyers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ireland had a big potato crop this year while much of Europe's crop was reduced sharply by drought. Prices have jumped, and so has potato smuggling, the Agriculture Department said today.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service said that the Irish potato crop of 1.28 million metric tons is more than enough to meet domestic needs. A metric ton is about equal to about 22 bags of potatoes weighing 100 pounds each.

But officials said that Ireland's restrictions on potato exports "have led to an increase in smuggling activity" and that up to 1,000 tons of potatoes have been leaving Ireland weekly in recent months for sale at lucrative prices abroad.

Growers and potato traders want the government to relax the regulations so the surplus potatoes can be sold overseas legally.

Urge Check Of Brakes On Buses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration warned today that brakes on older school buses, particularly those built before 1969, might fail because of corrosion and rusting of the hydraulic tubing.

It also said other pre-1969 buses, trucks and passenger vehicles might have similar problems.

The agency said the corrosion is not limited to any make or model but "may be present in any vehicle exposed over a period of four or more years to road splash containing heavy concentrations of salt, dirt, or chemicals used for snow and ice control on roadways."

The problem is more likely to occur in school buses made before 1969 because those built after that year have brake lines coated with a thicker layer of protective material, the agency said.

It urged school bus operators to inspect brake tubing thoroughly at least once a year, to replace corroded tubing and to wash exposed tubing periodically to remove corrosive materials splashed onto the vehicle during operation.

An agency spokesman said vehicle age rather than mileage and operating environment is the most significant factor. Tubing failure can result "in a catastrophic loss of braking capability in vehicles equipped with single hydraulic brake systems," the spokesman said.

Microwave Weapons Seen By Pentagon

By BARTON REPPERT
Associated Press Writer

A Pentagon report says recent Soviet research suggests that microwaves could potentially be used as an interrogation tool and as a weapon to trigger heart attacks or alter the behavior in diplomats and military officials.

The U.S. analysis of experiments in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe was released to The Associated Press by the Defense Intelligence Agency in response to a request under the Freedom of Information Act. The Pentagon said parts were withheld for national security reasons.

The report concluded Soviet studies have "great potential for development into a system for disorienting or disrupting the behavior patterns of military or diplomatic personnel. It could be used equally as well as an interrogation tool."

No mention was made in the study made by the Army Medical Intelligence and Information Agency of the current microwave bombardment of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, which the State Department has declared "an unhealthy post."

State Department officials claim the microwaves are beamed at the embassy in an attempt to disrupt electronic observation equipment in the building. The Soviets deny beaming any radiation at the embassy.

Microwaves are electromagnetic radiation used to transmit television signals, relay telephone calls and cook food quickly. But overexposure can cause headaches, dizziness, fatigue, irritability, insomnia, agitation, depression, anxiety, forgetfulness and menstrual disorders.

Soviet researchers have found that persons exposed to low-level radiation "experience more neurological cardiovascular and hemodynamic (blood circulation) disturbances than do their unexposed counterparts," the analysis said.

"Soviet scientists are fully aware of the biological effects of low-level microwave radiation which might have offensive weapons application," according to the report compiled by Ronald L. Adams of the Army surgeon general's office and Dr. R.A. Williams of Battelle Laboratories in Columbus, Ohio.

Testimony Slated In Yoshimura Case

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Testimony is set to start next Monday in the trial of Wendy Yoshimura, Patricia Hearst's last underground roommate, on charges of possessing weapons and explosives.

"We're very happy with the jury," Miss Yoshimura, 33, said Monday after a panel of seven women and five men was sworn in.

She was arrested in September 1975 with Miss Hearst and is free on $25,000 bail.

Universities Eye Cash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes' fiscal experts told presidents of state-assisted universities Monday that limited numbers of dollars are available for higher education but that they might want to apply for them under a different formula.

The governor met in separate, closed meetings with the heads of Ohio's 12 major four-year campuses, and later with those representing two-year general and technical colleges.

They complained, and Rhodes agreed, said Budget and Management Director William W. Wilkins, that some schools are discriminated against because the present formula penalizes those which experience unexpected growth. Others with comparatively stable enrollments can be hurt because their costs remain about the same from year to year.

Wilkins said technical schools in particular have been penalized because many of them sold their programs, only to wind up with more students than their state subsidies call for.

An alternative, the budget chief said, would be for the schools to apply for subsidies based on the number already enrolled, rather than apply for smaller per pupil state aid grants based on projected enrollments. Then, if the enrollments are larger than anticipated "they could look for other sources of funds," said Wilkins, indicating he was referring to fee increases.

Van-Orr Foods

Drummer Boy

Fried Chicken

★ VAN-ORR FOODS EXPANDS NEW DIVISION ★

Van-Orr Foods, a corporation based in Zanesville, Ohio, is proud to announce the recent formation of our new Chicken Division. The new name for our chicken division is "Drummer Boy Fried Chicken."

The "Drummer Boy" symbol and name are federally registered. The copy rights and patents are registered in all 50 states and will soon be applied for in other countries. The new building design and interior decor of Drummer Boy stores will be based on a Colonial motif, featuring a distinctive gabled roof design and Colonial pillars. Our name still features our delicious fried chicken product that we have developed over the years. In addition to our fried chicken, we are equally proud of our fish dinners and sandwiches, our salads, hot noodles and chili which are all made fresh in our own kitchens. Our same friendly and courteous employees and managers will continue to serve you, our friends, in the same fast and efficient manner as they have in the past.

Van-Orr Foods has been the owner/operators of Famous Recipe Fried Chicken stores in this area. Recently, through mutual agreement, Van-Orr Foods has purchased our rights under the franchise agreement with Famous Recipe of Dayton, Ohio, and will now expand only under the "Drummer Boy" name.

In response to several inquiries regarding the possibility of the relocation of Van-Orr Foods corporate offices, Mr. Thomas F. Orr, President and Chairman of the Board of Directors of Van-Orr Foods, affirmed that the corporation has received offers from other communities, but stated that, "We definitely intend to stay in Zanesville!"

The first new Drummer Boy Fried Chicken, with inside eating as well as take-out facilities, is under construction in Cambridge, Ohio, and will open in the near future. Other new units are scheduled to open very soon throughout this area, with groundbreaking for these units to be announced later.

The chicken stores under our ownership have now been redecorated under the name of Drummer Boy Fried Chicken. We invite you to visit us soon for the taste of chicken that is just down-home, country good.

In commenting on the future plans of Drummer Boy, Mr. Orr stated that "The introduction of Drummer Boy into the market is the result of a great amount of planning that accompanies any solidly based concept combined with a superior product." Mr. Orr further stated that he is quite confident that Drummer Boy Fried Chicken will soon spread throughout the Mid-western states and rapidly expand into the national market.

"Our greatest asset," Mr. Orr said, "is the organization behind our corporation. These men, and the hundreds of great employees we have, create a team with nothing but a winning future; a winning future for Drummer Boy Fried Chicken throughout the nation. Please visit us today!"

President-elect Jimmy Carter now says that making appreciable headway against the high rate of unemployment may not be possible much before the end of his first term as President. The risks of fueling a new inflation spiral are too great.

In broad terms, that is also what Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, had said only days before in testimony before a congressional committee. Considering that Burns had been one of Carter's targets during the campaign, what does this apparent post-election agreement mean?

It means, for one thing, that a man facing presidential responsibilities must proceed more cautiously on matters as important as the economy than a candidate has to. It also means that Carter sees inflation as a tickling economic time bomb which could boil up again to further damage the living standards and trade positions of not only the United States, but the industrial world.

So far during the early stages of the transition period, the President-elect has shown a penchant for treading softly and not antagonizing those whose existing policies he will have to decide to keep or replace in a couple of months. Whether he will find himself eventually disagreeing with the slow expansion policies of Arthur Burns and others, maintaining a cautious profile now does permit an unencumbered assessment of conditions as they exist two months from now.

Barbie Best Seller

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — For 18 Christmases, the best-selling doll in the world has been "Barbie." The plastic teenager with the good-looking boyfriend named "Ken."

The Women's Movement looked sternly upon little Barbie for quite awhile, suggesting that with her fabulous wardrobe, her ironing board, and her affinity for Ken, who was obviously a WASP, she was an unfit model for liberationable American girls. But public opinion sided with Barb - although some well-intentioned mothers tried to liberalize her by buying Evel Knievel dolls so she could broaden her social horizons. (It didn't work. The scale was wrong.)

This Christmas, for the first time, Barbie will have competition in the form of a pared-down swinger of a girl doll named "Tuesday Taylor." Taylor, according to her creators, is the "aspiration figure of today," while Barbie is still stuck back in the 1950s. "I mean, just look at the two side by side," says Arthur Albert, v.p. of Ideal Toy Corp., and head of its doll division. "Barbie was born when Marilyn Monroe and her kind of figure set the standards. That kind of figure is out today. Tuesday Taylor has the figure of the '70s."

Specifically, Tuesday's bosom is lower and less full than Barbie's. She has narrower and more sloping shoulders, and a narrower back. Her thighs and ankle are thinner, and her calves and ankles are heavier than Barbie's.

Asked how he arrived at this allegedly more contemporary look, Albert says that he and his wife, Judith, who is doll product manager, spent months "looking at young, forward-looking women here in New York City, and Tuesday Taylor is the way they look. Remember, she is a city girl. She lives in a penthouse. (The doll retails for about $5.95; her penthouse goes for $14.95) She's with it."

Is this what today's American girl wants - to live in a metropolis, in a penthouse?

"Absolutely," says Albert absolutely. "That's where the action is, the excitement. For awhile there was a period when people moved away from urban areas, but now girls want to move to the Big Apple and find the glamour."

Under the circumstances, it is appropriate that Tuesday can literally flip her wig. Her waist-length hair is blonde in front and black in back (or vice versa); by turning the top of her head, the hair color changes. Her basic wardrobe, before accessories, is an aqua dress with a peekaboo lace front that leaves precious little plastic to the imagination. Allegedly "just super for work or for dating," this eye and midriff-opening mini-skirted costume will take Tuesday far. Down the primrose path. If I were Tuesday Taylor's mother, I'd tell her to dress like a lady or she'll be yanked back to Ohio.

Of course, she presumably has protection because her boyfriend is a doll named Eric. Eric isn't any taller or more handsome or less WASP-ish than Barbie's Ken, but he's considerably bulkier: sweet face, but with the muscular menace of the King Kong doll. "Kids should love him," says his creator. "Eric pumps iron. He eats nails."

Does Ideal really think that Tuesday Taylor can knock out Mattel's Barbie, the favorite of more than a generation?

Maybe not immediately, but Albert feels eventually Tuesday could be the hotshot of the doll world because she reflects "what's happening." And the Toy Industry, probably the most competitive business in the world, has to keep pace: be, as he puts it, "current, correct and forward-looking. Mattel can't change Barbie's figure because they're locked-in by their inventory. They've sold so many hundreds of thousands of Barbie dresses that would no longer fit if they made her slimmer-and they'd meet a ranging kind of opposition from consumers. They're stuck."

Being stuck with all those hundreds of thousands of sales doesn't seem too dreadful to me, but what do I know? I know that the toy trade is the most secretive, cut-throat, cloak-and-dagger enterprise in existence. Toy inventors hide their creations in vaults, insure their patents with Lloyd's of London, and often go to their graves early-and embittered-because in spite of all their precautions, they've been ripped-off. I'm forever astounded and fascinated by the machinations of the business.

Will mod, big-city Tuesday Taylor knock off stable, loveable Barbie? Will nails-eating Eric replace all-American Ken in the affections of young girls? Will the Women's Libbers take sides? If they do, will anyone care? I don't know. I'm just relieved that in this slick, sophisticated world, baby dolls still are allowed to cry.

NEW YORK (AP) — A mortgage contract under which elderly homeowners can live off the value of their homes while retaining the right of lifetime occupancy is being backed by the nation's major home-lending group.

The innovation conceivably could provide tremendous social and financial benefits, because 70 per cent of households heads over age 65 are homeowners, with a total equity of more than $80 billion.

At the same time, it is estimated that nearly two-thirds of elderly married couples who own their homes have less than desired incomes, and could benefit from obtaining annuities based on their home equity.

The total equity of such elderly homeowners is sufficient to provide annual annuities in excess of $5 billion. Under the "split equity" plan, the homeowner is assured a home for life, but in the meantime obtains regular cash payments from the buyer. The latter is assured possession when the seller dies.

The concept, long utilized in France, was popularized earlier this year by Prof. Jack M. Guttentag of the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, but had attracted little official endorsement.

However, the new president of the U.S. League of Savings Association, said at the group's annual convention here last week that "We're not promoting it, but we're receptive to the chance to experiment."

"It isn't our main thrust but I like it," said John Hardin, who this year heads the league, which this year will make about 80 percent of all loans on single-family houses.

"We need to work out something to help older people in our society whose only alternative is to sell," said Hardin, president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Rock Hill, S.C.

The new league president indicated, however, that the present regulatory climate would tend to inhibit development of the idea.

He said the associations want flexibility to design mortgages to better fit the needs of borrowers but that the mood of Congress, which oversees the work of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, limits them to fixed-term mortgages.

The associations also seek to experiment with variable rate mortgages, with government-insured mortgages in "ring" neighborhoods on the edge of slums, and with mortgages designed specifically for young homebuyers.

Variable-rate mortgages are now offered by some state-chartered associations, in California especially, but not by federally chartered institutions. Rates under such plans rise and fall with money-market prices.

The program to seek government aid in making loans in rundown but basically sound neighborhoods on the edge of slums is largely a promotion of the savings associations, which have been accused of redlining such areas.

Under their plan, which is now being considered by the House of Representatives, the federal government would coinsure loans in transitional areas on an 80-20 basis, with the greater risk assumed by government.

Firm Announces Income Decline

CLEVELAND (AP) — Addressograph-Multigraph Corp., with one cost-cutting step offset by losses in foreign operations, today reported slightly lower first-quarter results on slightly increased sales.

Shareholders at the business and copying equipment firm's annual meeting learned that net income for the period ended Oct. 31 was $329,000, or four cents per share, on sales of $135.7 million.

That compared with $551,000, or six cents per share, on the previous initial period's $133.8 million in sales.

The current figures included a $1.1 million net gain from sale of a distribution center. That gain was offset by a $1.1 million loss from foreign currency fluctuations.

Never paint the exterior of a house when the thermometer falls below 50 degrees, says the National Paint and Coatings Assn. To avoid paint blistering, don't use alkyd paints on damp surfaces or in direct sunlight.

Speaking Of Your Health

I'm in remarkably good health for a man of 71 years of age. I would feel somewhat ridiculous if I discussed this problem with my doctor. I have a recurring fear that if I ever needed surgery it would be deadly at my age.

Mr. N. T., Ken.

Dear Mr. T.:

I truly hope that I can remove your anxiety. Before I do I would like to emphasize to you and to my other readers that there should be no problem that could be considered "ridiculous" by doctors.

The remarkable advances in anesthesia, the use of preoperative antibiotics, and the constant monitoring of the heart and lungs with electronic devices during surgery makes an operation safe at almost any age.

Intensive care units and recovery rooms have added enormously to the survival rates, even under the most delicate circumstances.

I do hope that you never need an operation. I hope, too, that you will eliminate the fears that distress you unnecessarily.

Is ringworm a real infection or is it a descriptive term?

Miss M.M., Wash.

Dear Miss M.:

Ringworm is a distinct skin disease caused by a fungus. There are a number of different types of ringworm, usually named after the area of the body that is involved. The scalp, groin, feet, beard and nails can be affected.

This condition is definitely contagious. Therefore, precautions in gyms and swimming pools must be carefully established. There are now some excellent drugs, applied locally, and others taken by mouth, which can control and cure ringworm.

When I eat shrimp or clams I break out in hives. I love them. Is there any way that I can be made less allergic to them?

Mr. F. B. G., Calif.

Dear Mr. G.:

I, too, love them and feel sorry for anyone who is allergic to these tasty tidbits.

I doubt that there is any way of desensitizing you. Yet consultation with a specialist in allergy may reveal some way that can minimize the after-effects of such gustatorial indulgence.

Dear Editor:

I have received information concerning a paper that was circulated late on election eve concerning our officers working the Circleville-Miami Trace ball game. We did work the game at the request of Sheriff Dwight Radcliff of your county.

This was done because the Sheriff felt that security in the rest of the county was important enough to warrant our men helping Pickaway County officers at the ball game so that his officers would not have to be pulled off other details.

We did not replace deputies but fell in place of city officers working other details because of the Pumpkin Show. Our men worked along side of the deputies of Pickaway County that were there.

It would seem to me that anyone seeking the office of Sheriff or anyone with any police experience should know that cooperation and mutual assistance is the backbone of good law enforcement. Without neighboring departments giving each other the utmost in cooperation, law and order cannot survive.

We did render assistance to Sheriff Radcliff during that game and will on any future request as we of the Fayette County Sheriff's Department consider him one of the finest and most efficient police officers in this country. We are positive that he would do the same for us.

I hope this clears up this matter involving my department.

This was done because the Sheriff felt that security in the rest of the county was important enough to warrant our men helping Pickaway County officers at the ball game so that his officers would not have to be pulled off other duties.

We did not replace deputies but fell in place of city officers working other details because of the Pumpkin Show. Our men worked along side of the deputies of Pickaway County that were there.

It would seem to me that anyone seeking the office of Sheriff or anyone with any police experience should know that cooperation and mutual assistance is the backbone of good law enforcement. Without neighboring departments giving each other the utmost in cooperation, law and order cannot survive.

We did render assistance to Sheriff Radcliff during that game and will on any future request as we of the Fayette County Sheriff's Department consider him one of the finest and most efficient police officers in this country. We are positive that he would do the same for us.

I hope this clears up this matter involving my department.

Ohio Senate Report

By OAKLEY C. COLLINS
17th District Senator

The Legislature is recessed until December 14. This column continues a series of articles reviewing legislation in the 111th General Assembly. This week's topic is pollution control.

The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency (OEPA) will begin holding public hearings next month on a proposed statewide sulphur dioxide emission control program that was drafted by the U.S. EPA.

Ohio's sulphur dioxide control plans have been overturned twice, once in 1972 by the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, and in 1974 by the Environmental Board of Review. The U.S. EPA began developing regulations in 1975.

Based on information gathered in the hearings, the state can adopt the regulations as proposed or with slight modifications, schedule a new round of hearings if substantial revisions are necessary, or leave enforcement of sulphur dioxide regulations up to the U.S. EPA.

The hearings will be held December 16 at the Cincinnati Convention Center, December 21 at the Federal Building in Cleveland, January 4 at the Keelan Community Room in Steubenville, and January 11 at the Ohio Departments Building in Columbus.

A recent OEPA report estimates $31.6 million will be needed in the next biennium for the state to clean up its own act.

The funds are needed, according to the OEPA report, to bring 64 state facilities into compliance with air and water pollution control regulations. Facilities needing improvement are operated by the Ohio Youth Commission, Department of Natural Resources, Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, Department of Rehabilitation and Correction, and the Board of Regents.

HB 294, effective last August, permits municipal corporations to assess property owners for the removal of litter. Current law already allows city authorities to remove "Noxious weeds" at a property owner's expense, if the owner will not voluntarily do so.

The law does not apply to property with a code variance or junk yard license.

Two other anti-litter bills (HB 323 and HB 590) that would tax disposable beverage containers went nowhere this year. Sponsors believe the tax would discourage consumer use of non-returnable cans and bottles. Glass and metal manufacturing industries are an important part of Ohio's economy, and many legislators feared reduced production would add to record unemployment levels.

To reduce or eliminate a health hazard or water pollution, SB 311 gives a board of county commissioners power under certain circumstances to require the premises in a county sewer district that are generating sewage to be connected into a public sewer.

The bill does not apply to any waste or sewage discharged under an EPA permit, animal wastes, or if the structure in question is more than 200 feet from the right of way in which a sewer is located.

SB 404 strengthens rules governing disposal of wastes in wells to reduce the chance of accidental water contamination or seepage into a strip pit or mine.

Disposal of waste in a well requires a liquid waste disposal permit that must be approved by three separate divisions of the OEPA.

If a proposed disposal site is within 5,000 feet of an underground mine or within 500 feet of the surface operations of a mine, the new law requires notification of the mine owner and gives him the right to object to issuance of the permit.

Well disposal sites must also conform to standards of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

Ohio levies a severance tax on the mining or removal of certain minerals, including coal, salt, and oil. Severance tax revenues previously went into a fund for reclamation or strip-mined land, to prevent erosion and drainage of mining wastes.

HB 28 now credits 75 per cent of the revenues to an Unreclaimed Land Fund for restoration of land affected by any kind of mining, and 25 per cent to an Oil and Gas Well Plugging Fund. The latter fund is used to plug abandoned wells, restore disturbed land, or for injection of oil and gas wastes into abandoned wells.

The new arrangement provides more flexibility in preventing pollution from mining activities and wastes.

Another mining bill (HB 191) provides better enforcement of mining reclamation laws by requiring a license for strip mining in addition to permits to strip mine specified areas of land.

The licensing procedure requires information as to the number of acres to be mined, duration of mining operations, land reclamation plans, and a substantial bond or security deposit to ensure compliance with reclamation standards.

HB 993 permits counties to purchase, own, and operate, or contract for, refuse recycling or resource recovery facilities. Waste recycled into useable products must be sold by competitive bidding except when the board of county commissioners determines it is in the public interest to sell such products commercially.

Ohio law previously permitted the state to issue revenue bonds to finance projects deemed to create or preserve jobs, or protect the public health, safety, and welfare. With passage of SB 104 revenue bonds can also be issued to finance air, water and solid waste pollution control facilities.

Because they are tax-free, revenue bonds can be issued at lower interest rates than conventional notes, and thus lower construction costs of public interest projects.

The state passes the savings onto private developers through grants and loans to promote public interest projects, and is repaid from revenues of the facility constructed or improved. Revenue bonds are a kind of partnership between government and private enterprise that doesn't cost taxpayers anything.

Equipment which lessens noise, thermal, liquid, particulate, or solid waste contamination, or prevents the hazard of such pollution, is eligible for state financing.

The word "miniature," which comes from the art of manuscript illumination, referred not to size, but to the red lead pigment "minium" used to paint initials and decorative borders.

Big Money Sought For Arts School

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas' millionaires had better take notice.

Dr. Kermit Hunter, just retired as dean of Southern Methodist University's Meadows School of the Arts, is going after big money for his school.

And Hunter has a history of succeeding at what he sets out to do.

At one time or another, Hunter, 65, bought and sold minor league baseball players in West Virginia, studied piano at the Juilliard School of Music, managed the North Carolina Symphony and earned a doctorate in English literature at the University of North Carolina.

He was a newspaper reporter for six years and a professor of literature for eight; he directed the American defense of the Caribbean during World War II and won the Legion of Merit; and he has written more outdoor dramas seen by more people than any other American playwright.

Hunter, who retired June 1 after steering the Meadows School through its first 12 years, is now writer-in-residence and head development officer there.

"I think we can get $10 million to $15 million in 12 to 18 months for the Meadows School," said Hunter. "We're going after the big money — two-three-four million dollar gifts."

The fund-raising drive is part of SMU's latest concentrated effort at boosting its endowment.

Hunter said the Meadows School, founded in 1964, largely through the efforts of Dallas oil millionaire Algor H. Meadows, has an actual endowment of about $6 million. His goal is $35 million.

When he's not coaxing money from millionaires, Hunter is continuing his career as a playwright. He's written more than 40 outdoor productions, seen by more than six million persons. Thirteen of Hunter's plays, including five new ones, were performed this summer.

"No other American playwright has 13 dramas in production," Hunter said. "As far as I know, no American playwright other than Dr. Paul Green has ever had more than 40 plays done professionally."

Hunter and Green, a former University of North Carolina philosophy professor, are in the forefront of the outdoor historical drama movement.

"More critics are accepting this as a legitimate movement in American literature," said Hunter. "Since Dr. Green and I are from academic backgrounds, we give the plays an educational cast. They're less commercial."

Hunter's first effort in outdoor theater, "Unto These Hills," was in its 26th season at Cherokee, N.C., this summer and has been seen by more than three million persons. Another Hunter production, "Horn in the West," at Boone, N.C., has run since 1952.

Hunter is preparing to publish his first book, an account of 25 years of producing outdoor dramas. He also says he wants to start a weekly newspaper in Dallas.

New Taxes Ruled Out In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Abraham Beame has "absolutely" ruled out new taxes and heavier layoffs in the face of the city's new fiscal crisis, caused by a court ruling that the city can't postpone paying off $1 billion in bonds.

The mayor also said at a Sunday news conference — sandwiched between crisis meetings with city, state and federal officials — that nobody who lent money to the city would be "stuck."

"Nobody was ever 'stuck,'" the mayor added testily. "New York is going to pay all its debts. It always has."

Beame revealed that he had talked by telephone with President-elect Jimmy Carter Saturday and that Carter had promised to talk to Secretary of the Treasury William Simon about the city's latest problem, saying he "would do all he could" to help.

The latest crisis arose Friday when the Court of Appeals, the state's highest, held that an important part of the last year's fiscal package that saved the city from default — a moratorium on repayment of $1.6 billion in short-term notes — was unconstitutional.

The note holders were offered an exchange of the city paper for bonds of the Municipal Assistance Corp., a state agency set up to deal with the city's financial plight. Holders of $600,000 worth of the debt agreed, but holders of the other $1 billion turned down the MAC bonds and a lawsuit was filed on their behalf, leading to Friday's decision.

News Of Interest To Women

Miss Joan Blankenship Weds Brian Richard Eitel

MR. AND MRS. BRIAN RICHARD EITEL

Scioto Chapel United Methodist Church was the setting for the candlelight ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Joanne Blankenship and Mr. Brian Richard Eitel.

The Rev. John H. Currens performed the double ring ceremony 6:30 p.m., Oct. 23, for the daughter of Mrs. Dora Blankenship of Ashville, and the late Mr. Larue Blankenship, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Eitel Jr., Darbyville.

Miss Mary Ellen Downs, organist, played a medley of nuptial selections preceding the ceremony and as the couple knelt at the altar, "The Lord's Prayer."

Two seven branch candelabra entwined with mums and fall flowers flanked the altar. White satin bows marked the pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and uncle, Mr. Bill Morton. She was escorted to the altar by her uncle. For her wedding the bride selected a gown of white polyester knit. Venice lace trimmed the bodice, enhanced with seed pearls. Acetate taffeta lined the full length gown with a high rise waistline and stand up collar, and lace cuffs on the bishop sleeves. The hemline of the skirt flowing softly to a chapel train was encircled with lace. The bride's chapel length veil of illusion was held by a camelot cap trimmed with pearl clusters and Venice lace. Her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of yellow roses, daisies and fall grain with orange streamers. Her only jewelry was earrings, a gift from the bridegroom.

Matron of honor was Mrs. James Cook, sister of the bride. She wore a mint green gown of organza with a high rise waistline and sheer bishop sleeves. Fall flowers and stalks of grain formed her headpiece, and she carried a colonial bouquet of yellow daisies, pompons and grain.

Little Miss Jami Frances Cook, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a white dress trimmed in green, matching that of the matron of honor. In her hair she wore fall flowers and grain, and carried a basket of yellow rose petals.

Miss Robin Cook, niece of the bride, held the train as the bride walked to the altar. She was attired in a floor length gown of green and white.

Mr. John Daniel Eitel III served his brother as best man. Mr. Don Prince and Mr. Steve Adams, cousins of the bride, were ushers. Ringbearer was Master John Daniel Eitel IV, nephew of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore a full length gown in a multi-colored floral pattern with matching accessories.

Pythian Sisters Discuss Recent Convention, Projects

Pythian Sisters of Majors Temple 516 met Thursday evening in the K of P lodge hall with 23 members answering roll call. Opal Vance, most excellent chief, presided over the business meeting and extended a welcome to members. Eleanor Fisher, Florence Jury, and Ruth Griest reported on altruistic work completed.

The first official letter from Gladys Emde, grand chief of Ohio, was read. Her emblem is the Persistent Butterfly. She said "Let us, as the butterfly, keep our faith and strive for a new tomorrow in Pythianism. Her theme is "Our American Heritage," her flower, the painted daisy and her Bible verse, 1st Thessalonians, chapter 1, verse 3.

Yankee Destiny

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The first Thanksgiving Day feast, which took place at the Plymouth Colony in 1621, was almost held in Guiana, South America, according to Hallmark historians.

The Pilgrims left England in 1608 and for 12 years were exiles in Holland. Unhappy there, they debated among themselves where to settle. Guiana, in the Northeastern part of South America, was their first choice. But tales of prosperity in the Virginia tobacco colony ultimately led them to select North America as their destination.

this year will be the new boiler. The new parttime administrator, Leonard Shaffer, hopes to make the home self-sustaining. Pythian Sisters are continuing their Pennies from Heaven and Cents-off Coupon work for the home. Projects for this year are: membership and helping the blind. Sister Hazel Thomas is in charge of the Pythian jewelry.

A memorial service and draping of the charter for 30 days was in memory of Lillian Carter, past grand chief, who died in October. Participating in the service were Opal Vance, Pauline Smallwood, Katherine Mead, Eleanor Fisher and Florence Jury. A contribution was made to ladies in Medina Home for their Thanksgiving.

The 30th annual convention of District 2 Pythian Sisters was held recently with Cypress Temple 484 of Stoutsville as hosts. Attending from Majors Temple were Julia Burton, Elma Rains, Clara Lathouse, Mary Clark, Billie Osborne, Eleanor Fisher, Lucille Montgomery, Mary Humphrey, Mable Smith, Carolyn Young, Lucille Bosworth, Norma Toland, June Davis, Goldie Lindsey, Olive Hettinger, Ruth Griest, Ethel Lane, Della Wertman, Addie Lockard, Jane Winfough, Opal Vance, Pauline Smallwood, Shirley Hall and Katherine Mead. Ruth Griest served as a delegate. The 1977 convention will be hosted by Ashville Temple 366.

At the next regular meeting to be held 7:30 p.m., Dec. 22, election of officers will be conducted. Serving on the refreshment committee will be Mary Humphrey and Delores Hermann.

Birthdays of the month recognized were those of Florence Jury and Lucille Bosworth. Gifts were won by Pam Osborne and Mrs. Jury.

During the social hour refreshments were served by Billie Osborne, Eileen Griffith, Mabel Smith and Pam Osborne.

Plain Sex Talk About Paraplegics

DEAR ABBY: PUZZLED IN NEW YORK couldn't understand why a nurse he was engaged to marry dropped him for a patient who was paralyzed from the waist down. He asked, "What good can he do her as a husband?" Well, I have news for PUZZLED.

I am married to a paraplegic. His spine was severed by a bullet that rendered his legs useless, but the rest of him is just fine. He is just like any other man in all respects except he rolls instead of walks.

And anyone who thinks that sex isn't a part of our marriage is really stupid. Paralyzed people need love, and they can give it too. And for the record, we are both 22.

HAPPY IN ILLINOIS

DEAR HAPPY: Read on for another interesting letter from a reader who also speaks with authority, with a view from a wheelchair:

DEAR ABBY: May I answer PUZZLED IN N.Y., the healthy able-bodied man who was engaged to a nurse, but lost her to a policeman who was paralyzed from the waist down? PUZZLED asked, "How can he do her any good as a husband?"

DEAR PUZZLED: As a totally paralyzed person in a wheelchair, I think I can tell you a few things you ought to know. Just because a person's legs stop functioning, it doesn't mean his mind and heart also stop. He can still think, get angry, make decisions and love.

Perhaps one day you will be able to see things in a different light. I can assure you that seeing things from a wheelchair not only changes your level of viewing life, but also broadens your appreciation of it.

It is possible that your former fiancée's life with a paralyzed husband could be highly rewarding in all respects, and that means sexually, too.

I want to caution you about something. The possibility of your becoming paralyzed or suffering some form of disability is one in 10 . . . and growing greater every year. Don't gamble your happiness on only being able to stand up.

WHEELCHAIR IN FORT WORTH

DEAR READERS: If you would like some excellent information and/or instruction on how to handle your sexual feelings satisfactorily through physically handicapped, get in touch with your County or State Easter Seal Society, also known as Society For Crippled Children and Adults.

And the office of SIECUS (Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S., 1855 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10023) can also provide you with helpful material. Both agencies also can provide information about the help that is available to you in your own community.

Both above agencies are non profit, so if you write to inquire about the help that's available to you in your own community, please enclose a stamped, addressed envelope for their reply.

Personals

Mrs. Fannie Brooks and son, Robert, Route 3, have returned to their home after visiting in Norwalk, Conn. They attended the wedding of Mrs. Brooks' nephew, Davis Brooks, and Jane Rice.

News Of Interest To Women

6 The Circleville Herald, Tuesday November 23, 1976

Miss Joan Blankenship Weds Brian Richard Eitel

MR. AND MRS. BRIAN RICHARD EITEL

Scioto Chapel United Methodist Church was the setting for the candlelight ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Joanne Blankenship and Mr. Brian Richard Eitel.

The Rev. John H. Currens performed the double ring ceremony 6:30 p.m., Oct. 23, for the daughter of Mrs. Dora Blankenship of Ashville, and the late Mr. Larue Blankenship, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Eitel Jr., Darbyville.

Miss Mary Ellen Downs, organist, played a medley of nuptial selections preceding the ceremony and as the couple knelt at the altar, "The Lord's Prayer."

Two seven branch candelabra entwined with mums and fall flowers flanked the altar. White satin bows marked the pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and uncle, Mr. Bill Morton. She was escorted to the altar by her uncle. For her wedding the bride selected a gown of white polyester knit. Venice lace trimmed the bodice, enhanced with seed pearls. Acetate taffeta lined the full length gown with a high rise waistline and stand up collar, and lace cuffs on the bishop sleeves. The hemline of the skirt flowing softly to a chapel train was encircled with lace. The bride's chapel length veil of illusion was held by a camelot cap trimmed with pearl clusters and venice lace. Her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of yellow roses, daisies and fall grain with orange streamers. Her only jewelry was earrings, a gift from the bridegroom.

Matron of honor was Mrs. James Cook, sister of the bride. She wore a mint green gown of organza with a high rise waistline and sheer bishop sleeves. Fall flowers and stalks of grain formed her headpiece, and she carried a colonial bouquet of yellow daisies, pompons and grain.

Little Miss Jami Frances Cook, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a white dress trimmed in green, matching that of the matron of honor. In her hair she wore fall flowers and grain, and carried a basket of yellow rose petals.

Miss Robin Cook, niece of the bride, held the train as the bride walked to the altar. She was attired in a floor length gown of green and white.

Mr. John Daniel Eitel III served his brother as best man. Mr. Don Prince and Mr. Steve Adams, cousins of the bride, were ushers. Ringbearer was Master John Daniel Eitel IV, nephew of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore a full length gown in a multi-colored floral pattern with matching accessories.

Pythian Sisters Discuss Recent Convention, Projects

Pythian Sisters of Majors Temple 516 met Thursday evening in the K of P lodge hall with 23 members answering roll call. Opal Vance, most excellent chief, presided over the business meeting and extended a welcome to members. Eleanor Fisher, Florence Jury, and Ruth Griest reported on altruistic work completed.

The first official letter from Gladys Emde, grand chief of Ohio, was read. Her emblem is the Persistent Butterfly. She said "Let us, as the butterfly, keep our faith and strive for a new tomorrow in Pythianism. Her theme is "Our American Heritage," her flower, the painted daisy and her Bible verse, 1st Thessalonians, chapter 1, verse 3.

Yankee Destiny

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The first Thanksgiving Day feast, which took place at the Plymouth Colony in 1621, was almost held in Guiana, South America, according to Hallmark historians.

The Pilgrims left England in 1608 and for 12 years were exiles in Holland. Unhappy there, they debated among themselves where to settle. Guiana, in the Northeastern part of South America, was their first choice. But tales of prosperity in the Virginia tobacco colony ultimately led them to select North America as their destination.

this year will be the new boiler. The new parttime administrator, Leonard Shaffer, hopes to make the home self-sustaining. Pythian Sisters are continuing their Pennies from Heaven and Cents-off Coupon work for the home. Projects for this year are: membership and helping the blind. Sister Hazel Thomas is in charge of the Pythian jewelry.

A memorial service and draping of the charter for 30 days was in memory of Lillian Carter, past grand chief, who died in October. Participating in the service were Opal Vance, Pauline Smallwood, Katherine Mead, Eleanor Fisher and Florence Jury. A contribution was made to ladies in Medina Home for their Thanksgiving.

The 30th annual convention of District 2 Pythian Sisters was held recently with Cypress Temple 484 of Stoutsville as hosts. Attending from Majors Temple were Julia Burton, Elma Rains, Clara Lathouse, Mary Clark, Billie Osborne, Eleanor Fisher, Lucille Montgomery, Mary Humphrey, Mable Smith, Carolyn Young, Lucille Bosworth, Norma Toland, June Davis, Goldie Lindsey, Olive Hettlinger, Ruth Griest, Ethel Lane, Della Wertman, Addie Lockard, Jane Winfough, Opal Vance, Pauline Smallwood, Shirley Hall and Katherine Mead. Ruth Griest served as a delegate. The 1977 convention will be hosted by Ashville Temple 366.

At the next regular meeting to be held 7:30 p.m., Dec. 22, election of officers will be conducted. Serving on the refreshment committee will be Mary Humphrey and Delores Hermann.

Birthdays of the month recognized were those of Florence Jury and Lucille Bosworth. Gifts were won by Pam Osborne and Mrs. Jury.

During the social hour refreshments were served by Billie Osborne, Eileen Griffith, Mabel Smith and Pam Osborne.

Dear Abby:

Plain Sex Talk About Paraplegics

DEAR ABBY: PUZZLED IN NEW YORK couldn't understand why a nurse he was engaged to marry dropped him for a patient who was paralyzed from the waist down. He asked, "What good can he do her as a husband?" Well, I have news for PUZZLED.

I am married to a paraplegic. His spine was severed by a bullet that rendered his legs useless, but the rest of him is just fine. He is just like any other man in all respects except he rolls instead of walks.

And anyone who thinks that sex isn't a part of our marriage is really stupid. Paralyzed people need love, and they can give it too. And for the record, we are both 22.

HAPPY IN ILLINOIS

DEAR HAPPY: Read on for another interesting letter from a reader who also speaks with authority, with a view from a wheelchair:

DEAR ABBY: May I answer PUZZLED IN N.Y., the healthy able-bodied man who was engaged to a nurse, but lost her to a policeman who was paralyzed from the waist down? PUZZLED asked, "How can he do her any good as a husband?"

DEAR PUZZLED: As a totally paralyzed person in a wheelchair, I think I can tell you a few things you ought to know. Just because a person's legs stop functioning, it doesn't mean his mind and heart also stop. He can still think, get angry, make decisions and love.

Perhaps one day you will be able to see things in a different light. I can assure you that seeing things from a wheelchair not only changes your level of viewing life, but also broadens your appreciation of it. It is possible that your former fiancée's life with a paralyzed husband could be highly rewarding in all respects, and that means sexually, too.

I want to caution you about something. The possibility of your becoming paralyzed or suffering some form of disability is one in 10... and growing greater every year. Don't gamble your happiness on only being able to stand up.

WHEELCHAIR IN FORT WORTH DEAR READERS: If you would like some excellent information and/or instruction on how to handle your sexual feelings satisfactorily through physically handicapped, get in touch with your County or State Easter Seal Society, also known as Society For Crippled Children and Adults.

And the office of SIECUS (Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S., 1855 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10023) can also provide you with helpful material. Both agencies also can provide information about the help that is available to you in your own community.

Both above agencies are non profit, so if you write to inquire about the help that's available to you in your own community, please enclose a stamped, addressed envelope for their reply.

Three People Injured In Monday Auto Crashes

Three people were injured in two single-car auto accidents investigated by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies Monday night.

Rita Huston, 7810 Old Tarlton Pike, was transferred to Riverside Hospital, Columbus, after receiving initial treatment at Berger Hospital's emergency room.

She is suffering from multiple lacerations, and a possible fractured vertebrae.

According to the report of Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Terry Frazier, Ms. Huston was driving northeast on the Zane Trail Road and entering a slight right curve when she lost control of her car about 9:45 p.m.

The car skidded off the left side of the road for 102 feet, crossed back to the right side for 162 feet, and struck a cement culvert with the right rear of the vehicle.

The car continued for 37 feet and came to rest in the middle of the roadway.

The accident occurred four-tenths of a mile southwest of Route 56, and is still under investigation.

Defective steering and brakes have been blamed for a single-car accident which injured two people 9:30 p.m. Monday.

The accident occurred on Route 22 at the Route 23 southbound ramp.

Driver of the car, Jace Fowler, 19, Route 2, was referred to a doctor for treatment of minor chin lacerations. His passenger, Gary L. Fullen, 20, 345 E. Union St., refused treatment for a laceration to his right hand.

Deputies Terry Frazier and Jim Bingman said Fowler was driving west on Route 22 and was passing under the Route 23 overpass when the steering and brakes on his car apparently locked.

The malfunctions forced the car off the right side, where it knocked down two stop signs and two do not enter signs before crashing into a ditch.

Patty Hearst Settles Into Home Lifestyle

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, back with her family for the first time in almost three years, says she's looking forward to reading the latest best-sellers, getting a dog and gaining weight.

"It was like I never left. It's nice to be home," the 22-year-old Miss Hearst said in a copyright interview in the San Francisco Examiner, her father's newspaper. "I'm just moving in, getting settled and wandering around."

Miss Hearst, bailed out while appealing her bank robbery conviction, was to place her first court-ordered telephone call to federal probation officials today from her parent's elegant Nob Hill apartment.

"I do anticipate her calling," district probation officer Harry Schloetter said in an interview Sunday. He said the newspaper heiress "could be in violation" if she failed to adhere to conditions outlined in release orders by U.S. District Judge William Orrick.

The conditions included calls to Schloetter's office every Monday and Thursday and monthly visits with probation officers while her attorneys appeal. She also needs permission to leave the state.

Schloetter said arrangements for monitoring Miss Hearst would not be extraordinary, but he said details were still to be worked out.

Errant Driver Still Anonymous

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A hit-and-run driver added insult to injury when he wrote his way out of a tight spot.

Michael Brown, 22, said that whoever smacked his 1970 Ford from behind last week left a note on the windshield. Brown said he figured the driver had left his name and would foot the bill — until he read the note.

"I'm sorry I hit your car," it began. "A few people are watching and they think I'm leaving my name and address, but I'm not."

"Your car is nothing but junk anyway. Once again I'm sorry," it concluded.

"I don't think my car is junk," protested Brown, an aide at Buffalo City Court. "It has a few rust spots and needs some paint, but it was in good shape."

Brown said he received a $400 repair estimate.

Miss Hearst was released from jail Friday on $1.5 million bail put up by the family she had reviled while a member of the Symbionese Liberation Army, the group that kidnapped her on Feb. 4, 1974. At the time she was abducted, her family lived in a mansion in suburban Hillsborough.

She reportedly spent the weekend quietly in her parents' apartment, telling an interviewer she planned to read the latest best-sellers, resume an interest in photography and get a dog. She also said she wanted to work someday for a magazine.

"I could use 10 more pounds," she said. "My clothes are too big. I weighed about 88 pounds during the trial. Now I'm up to about 94."

Her plans are dependent on the appeal of her seven-year prison sentence — a process expected to consume months. She is due to go on trial Jan. 10 in Los Angeles on separate state assault and kidnap charges stemming from a 1974 shooting and shoplifting incident while she was in the company of the SLA.

Senior Food and Fellowship is funded by the Ohio Commission on Aging and is operated by Pickaway County Community Action at 135 East Main Street in the basement of the Eagles building.

The nutrition program is set up to provide a hot, nourishing noon-day meal to anyone sixty years of age or older, plus the spouse of these people and their guests. Senior Food and Fellowship is offered to any elderly of our community, regardless of income, and payment is on the basis of a voluntary confidential contribution.

There has been good community support for this program so far with members of Senior Citizens, staff from various community agencies and the County Commissioners attending.

A special meal will be served on Wednesday, Nov. 24, the day before Thanksgiving. Menu is: Sliced turkey with dressing, Homemade noodles, Cut green beans, Fruit salad, Relish plate, and Pumpkin custard.

PICCA will be closed November 25 and 26. For reservations, call 474-8617.

Back Of $2 Bill Serves As Model

MIAMI (AP) — Fernando Ventura has just spent a year making a four-by-seven foot woodcarving of the back of a $2 bill.

The Dominican Republic native said he wanted to honor his adopted country's Bicentennial by duplicating John Trumbull's painting of the presentation of the Declaration of Independence to the Continental Congress. But the only model he could find was on a $2 bill.

Ventura, 23, said he plans to turn the carving into a conference table with fancy carved wooden legs and a glass top. Then he wants to take it to Washington to present it at the White House.

Enjoy America's Favorite Food At Giovanni's

A recent national survey showed that pizza is the most popular food in the United States today. The thin, crisp dough, topped with just about anything imaginable, has surpassed such old stand-bys as hamburgers, french fries, and sundaes. And if you're going to enjoy America's favorite food, why not enjoy it in Circleville's most popular pizza shop? That could only be Giovanni's Pizza, 114 S. Court St.

Owner Randy Gilmore and his wife Carol have developed the specialty of the house at Giovanni's until you just can't find a better tasting pizza in the area. After choosing from three different sizes, you can choose from toppings such as cheese, pepperoni, Italian sausage, mushrooms, mangoes, anchovies, bacon, olives, onion, banana peppers, hot pepper seeds, or any combination of the eleven.

If you don't want a pizza, then order a mouth-watering sub, guaranteed to please the palate.

Or, if you don't feel like eating any food, you can wet your whistle with a wide variety of soft drinks, as well as your favorite can or draft beer.

After you have that pizza in front of you, then sit back, enjoy it, and watch your favorite program or sporting event on Giovanni's wide screen television set. Gilmore had the set installed because of the crowds that gathered and watched sports events on his old set above the bar. Also at Giovanni's, there is an excellent foosball table and two pinball machines for the patron who wants to show off his skills.

Giovanni's is closed on Mondays, but through the rest of the week, they are open from 4 p.m. to 1 a.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and 4 p.m. to 12 midnight on Sunday.

If you can't get down to Giovanni's, then just tell them so when you call in your order, and your pizza will be delivered to your door piping hot. With the coupon that appears in the Herald, you can get 50 cents off the delivery charge.

Also, stop in at Giovanni's and inquire about the gift certificates that are available for the person on your shopping list that has everything. They will make excellent stocking-stuffers this Christmas.

So remember, when you're hungry for America's favorite food, stop in at Circleville's favorite place and enjoy a great pizza... Giovanni's, 114 S. Court St.

THE PARLOR AREA at Giovanni's Pizza is spacious and clean. Gilmore recently installed the booths to add more room to the area. From this area you can view the wide screen television or the foosball table. Two pinball machines are also placed in the parlor so that you can try out your skills while you wait for your order.

ANOTHER ORDER is processed at Giovanni's Pizza. Pizzas come in three different sizes, and you can choose from a wide variety of toppings, including cheese, pepperoni, mushrooms, Italian sausage, mangoes, peppers, and many more. Stop in at Giovanni's and inquire about their gift certificates that would make great gifts at Christmas or any time of year.

GIOVANNI'S PIZZA
DOWNTOWN CIRCLEVILLE - 114 S. COURT

Enjoy America's Favorite Food At Giovanni's

A recent national survey showed that pizza is the most popular food in the United States today. The thin, crisp dough, topped with just about anything imaginable, has surpassed such old stand-bys as hamburgers, french fries, and sundaes. And if you're going to enjoy America's favorite food, why not enjoy it in Circleville's most popular pizza shop? That could only be Giovanni's Pizza, 114 S. Court St.

Owner Randy Gilmore and his wife Carol have developed the specialty of the house at Giovanni's until you just can't find a better tasting pizza in the area. After choosing from three different sizes, you can choose from toppings such as cheese, pepperoni, Italian sausage, mushrooms, mangoes, anchovies, bacon, olives, onion, banana peppers, hot pepper seeds, or any combination of the eleven.

If you don't want a pizza, then order a mouth-watering sub, guaranteed to please the palate.

Or, if you don't feel like eating any food, you can wet your whistle with a wide variety of soft drinks, as well as your favorite can or draft beer.

After you have that pizza in front of you, then sit back, enjoy it, and watch your favorite program or sporting event on Giovanni's wide screen television set. Gilmore had the set installed because of the crowds that gathered and watched sports events on his old set above the bar. Also at Giovanni's, there is an excellent foosball table and two pinball machines for the patron who wants to show off his skills.

Giovanni's is closed on Mondays, but through the rest of the week, they are open from 4 p.m. to 1 a.m. Tuesday through Saturday, and 4 p.m. to 12 midnight on Sunday.

Lucasville Security Probe Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After three escape attempts in an 11-day span, state prison officials have sent an investigating team to the Southern

Business News

SALESMAN — Cary Blevins has been named Salesman of the Month in Pickaway County for Century 21 Real Estate.

Ohio Correctional Facility to study the prison's security.

"This team of officials will have full authority to make any immediate changes in current security procedures that they may determine are necessary," said George F. Denton, director of the Department of Rehabilitation and Correction.

Denton said the three-man team will conduct a "thorough evaluation of existing security procedures." He said the probe will continue "as long as necessary," but added that he expects most of the evaluation to be complete within a week.

Denton said that although the three escape attempts may indicate weaknesses in some areas of security, the Lucasville prison's overall security must be considered sound since none of the attempts was successful.

The investigating team will include E. Blaine Haskins, department assistant director; John P. Canney, chief of the department's division of institutions; and Frank Carnein, security administrator for the department.

The probe comes on the heels of three escape attempts, including back-to-back attempts Friday and Saturday.

On Nov. 10, two inmates sprinted across the prison yard and scaled two prison fences. One was apprehended just outside the fence, but the other had to be hunted down in the woods near the prison.

On Friday, nine inmates were being transported to Columbus when two .22-caliber pistols were pulled and the driver of the small van ordered to stop. The driver and guard veered off the road and leaped from the van as they were fired upon. None of the inmates got out of the van.

On Saturday morning, two inmates escaped from their cell window and ran for the prison fences. The guard towers opened fire on the pair, and both surrendered in the prison yard.

After the Friday attempt, prison officials ordered that all inmates being transported must be strip-searched and change into special orange coveralls before boarding vehicles.

Department spokesman Joseph Ashley said Monday the department is still trying to determine how the guns got into the van. He said investigators believe only one inmate was involved in the attempt.

Ashley said the current investigation will also include searches of cellblocks and other areas, looking for weapons or any situations that might create the possibility of escape.

Ashley said searches of various cells also were conducted over the weekend.

Detective Arrests 2 Men, Youth

Pickaway County Sheriff's Detective Don Thompson has arrested a 15-year-old juvenile and two 18-year-old men on charges of receiving stolen property.

The arrests stem from his investigation of a vehicle stolen from Rainbow Lanes in Columbus and recovered by the local department Nov. 5.

The adults are Michael Edward Sparks, Poplar Grove Trailer Court, and Alvin Lee Lanthorn Jr., Lockbourne Lodge Trailer Court.

Sparks and Lanthorn have also been charged with grand theft of a motor vehicle from the residence of Richard H. Thomas Jr., Lockbourne Lodge Trailer Court. The vehicle was taken Nov. 17 and recovered the same day.

Sparks was additionally charged with escape when he attempted to flee from Detective Thompson and Auxiliary Deputy Don Woodward at the Poplar Grove Trailer Court Friday night.

Tape Recorder Picks Up 'Extras'

PLATTE CITY, Mo. (AP) — When court reporter Earl West plays back trial proceedings on his tape recorder, he sometimes hears phrases like "That's a big 10-4, good buddy," mixed in among the "Objections overruled."

West, reporter for Platte County Circuit Court, said his recorder picks up, records and transmits radio signals along with the court proceedings. He's heard transmissions from police and the highway patrol, Citizens Band radio and commercial radio broadcasts.

West said the broadcasts seem to depend on atmospheric conditions. He said he took the machine to a repair shop, "but evidently they didn't do anything to it, because it still does it."

Cousteau Claims Atlantis A Myth

ATHENS (AP) — After 13 months of searching the Aegean seabed, Jacques Cousteau says he's concluded that the legendary city of Atlantis was just a figment of Plato's imagination.

"Plato ... built up a fantasy of Atlantis as his model for a perfect civilization," the underwater explorer said Monday. "Atlantis was never a reality, but the myth was carried on after Plato."

Cousteau said his expedition had turned up thousands of ancient artifacts and several ships dating from as far back as 3,000 B.C.

Johnsongrass taking over your corn? Get Eradicane®

Selective Herbicide

Johnsongrass, as strong a weed as you'll ever see, can put you out of the corn business if left unchecked. An Eradicane herbicide program is the answer.

Here's how to use it. Plow early and disc several times to chop the johnsongrass rhizomes into pieces about 4 inches long. Then disc in Eradicane thoroughly.

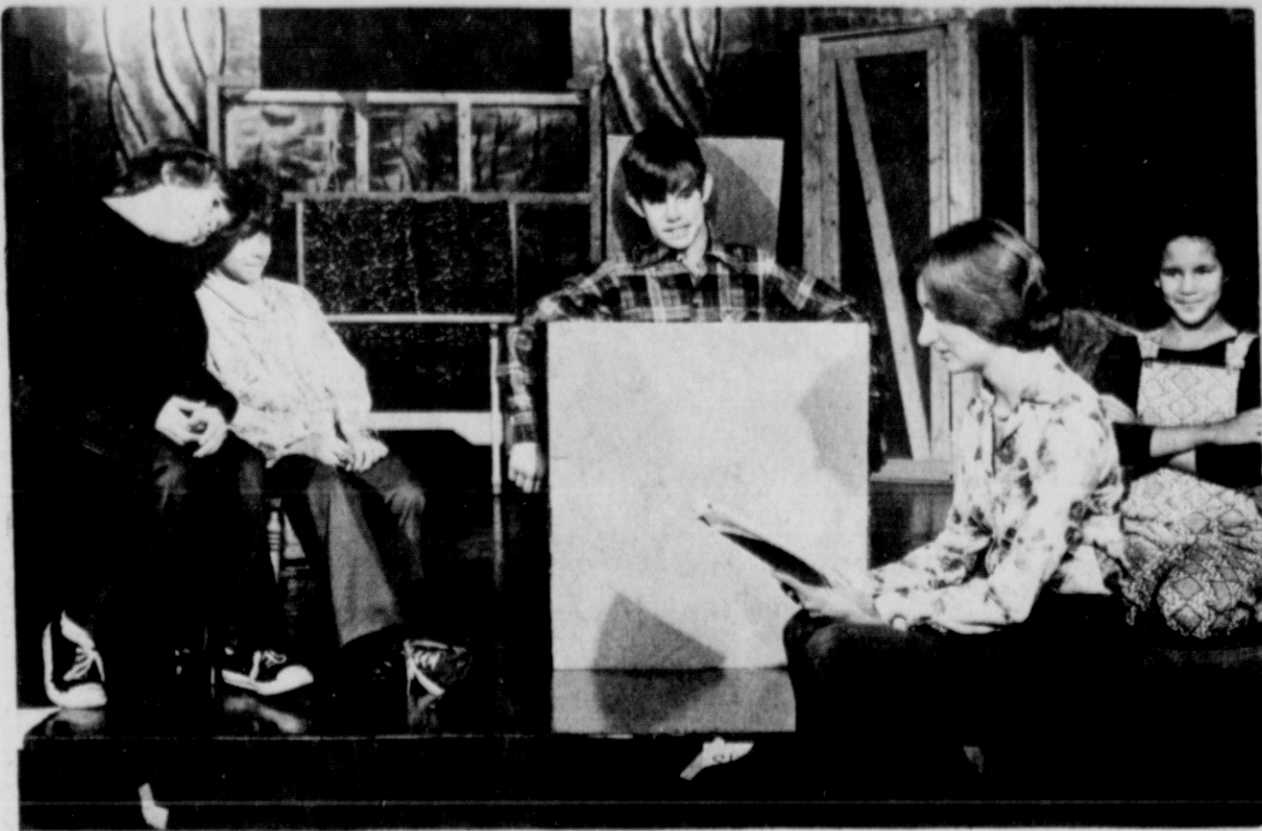

Plant fields infested with johnsongrass last, so the soil is warm. This way, corn grows fast to make a quick ground cover without weed competition. Eradicane also controls many other grass and broadleaf weeds.

That's the Eradicane herbicide program...it works so well performance is guaranteed in the continental United States when used as the label directs, or Stauffer will replace the product. Verify purchase, leave a check strip and notify Stauffer promptly.

This season control seedling johnsongrass and thoroughly suppress the rhizomes. Use Eradicane. Always follow label directions carefully. See your Stauffer supplier for Eradicane.

A cold westerly flow of air responsible for Ohio's chilling temperatures and scattered flurries continued to grip the state today. More scattered flurries were to drift across the north and northeast portion of the state, but no significant snowfall was expected. The flurries are expected to end completely tonight as winds become lighter and more southwesterly. Temperatures will remain rather cold through Wednesday with daytime highs mostly in the 30s and lows tonight ranging from the mid teens to the mid 20s. Snow and flurries fell over most of northern Ohio during the night, with locally heavy snow squalls dumping three to five inches in the snow belt along Lake Erie east of Cleveland. Interstate 90 was snow-covered and slippery in Ashtabula County early today with reports of trucks jackknifed and a number of other traffic-related problems. No schools were closed and traffic continued moving slowly on the Interstate.

Joan Baez Plans Trip To Belfast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Folksinger Joan Baez says she's going to Belfast to help try to end the violence in Northern Ireland. "It's a cause that's tailor-made for beliefs I've had since I was 9 or 10 years old," the 34-year-old pacifist told a news conference Monday. "I expect to have a very good time there and to be very frightened." Miss Baez said she will leave today for two weeks of rallies and marching at the invitation of the Peace People of Ireland, a nonviolent movement organized by Protestant and Catholic women.

gasoline averages 61.5 cents per gallon for the upcoming four-day weekend, down fourtenths of one cent from Labor Day, traditional end of the heavy-travel season. Premium gasoline averages 65.8 cents per gallon, down from 66 cents, and unleaded 63.8 cents, down from 63.9 cents, AAA said. Diesel fuel is averaging 53.3 cents a gallon, the association said.

The association said its survey indicated that motorists should find adequate supplies of all grades over the long weekend.

Over 70 per cent of the stations surveyed said they planned to be open on the holiday itself, Thursday, Nov. 25; more than half indicated they would pump gas after 6 p.m. that day; all said normal operating hours would be observed on Friday and Saturday, and only 20 per cent said they would be closed on Sunday.

At least 15 per cent of the stations contacted said they would remain open around the clock throughout the four-day weekend.

The highest prices found in the survey were in Mammoth Lakes, Calif., where regular grade fuel was 75.9 cents per gallon, premium 79.9 and unleaded 77.9.

Lowest prices were found in the Houston and Beaumont, Tex., areas, where a gallon of regular sold for 45.9 cents, premium 50.9 cents and unleaded 49.9 cents.

On a regional basis, the highest prices per gallon were found in the Mountain states of Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming, where regular was 64.6 cents per gallon, premium 68.5 cents and unleaded 66.6 cents.

The lowest prices regionally were reported in the oil-producing West South Central area — Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas — where regular was 59.9 cents per gallon, premium 63.7 cents and unleaded 61.8 cents.

Gilmore Hearing Moved Up Week

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gary Gilmore, weakening in his fourth day without food, will appear before a special meeting of the Utah Board of Pardons one week from today to demand that he be allowed to die before a firing squad.

Board member Thomas Harrison said Monday that the three-man panel decided to move the hearing from Dec. 6 to Nov. 30 to avoid conflict with a state law requiring that executions be carried out within 60 days of sentencing.

Gilmore's 60 days will be up on Dec. 7, and some officials have said they were concerned the law might be interpreted as requiring that he be released if he were not executed by then.

The 35-year-old Gilmore has fought attempts to delay his execution for the slaying of a Provo motel clerk during a robbery. He has said he will plead personally before the board for a speedy death.

The board must either uphold the death sentence or commute it to life imprisonment, and the chairman has indicated board members may have little choice but to go along with Gilmore's wishes.

One day before Gilmore was to have addressed the board last Wednesday, he and his girl friend, Nicole Barrett, 20, took overdoses of sleeping pills in an apparent suicide plot.

Both are recovering, but Gilmore began a hunger strike Friday night when officials refused to let him telephone Mrs. Barrett at the mental institution where her mother committed her. He has since consumed only water, coffee, sugar and headache medication.

Deputy Warden Leon Hatch said

Utility Billing 'Reasonable'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The first state ruling under a law regulating the way electric companies pass through increased coal costs to residential customers has found Ohio Edison's monthly billings are "fair and reasonable."

But the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio said Monday the company's thermal or coalburning efficiency program has steadily declined and should be explained in more detail.

"If a plant is thermally efficient, it is using the minimum amount of fuel to generate the maximum amount of electricity," a PUCO spokesman said. "While there are problems in thermal efficiency, all that really means anything is there is no call for any adjustments or rebates at this time."

The PUCO audit said Ohio Edison's company-owned mining operation was producing coal at a reasonable cost, while the utility has cut down its reliance on high priced, spot market coal.

The General Assembly enacted legislation last year to stiffen state regulation of the Fuel Adjustment Clause in response to consumer complaints over the way electric companies automatically raised monthly rates.

Gilmore, confined to the Utah State Prison infirmary, was weakening. But he said Gilmore's condition was not yet of great concern to the prison doctor.

Prison officials asked the attorney general's office Monday whether they could force Gilmore to accept nourishment by intravenous tubes.

Mrs. Barrett is in a state mental institution in Provo. Officials have declined to release information on her condition.

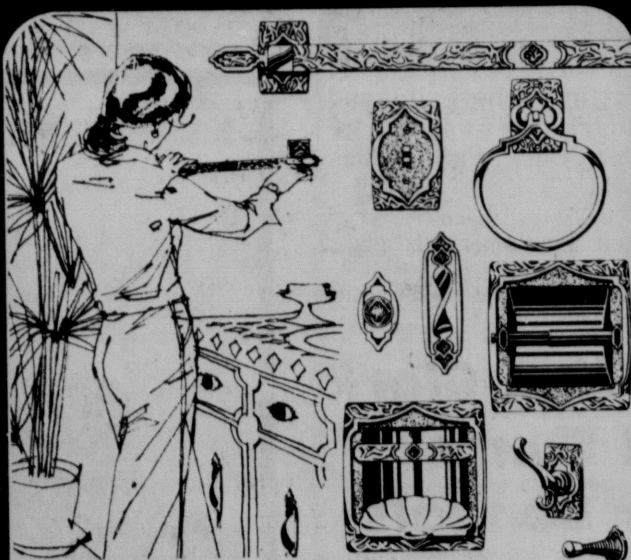

Meanwhile, Salt Lake County authorities said they had determined that Gilmore obtained the sleeping pills from outside the prison. Salt Lake County Assistant Atty. Bill Hyde called Mrs. Barrett "an obvious suspect," though officers said she had not been questioned.

Gilmore originally was sentenced to die on Nov. 15, but the sentence was stayed by Gov. Calvin Rampton so the pardons board could decide whether execution was "appropriate."

A cold westerly flow of air responsible for Ohio's chilling temperatures and scattered flurries continued to grip the state today.

More scattered flurries were to drift across the north and northeast portion of the state, but no significant snowfall was expected.

The flurries are expected to end completely tonight as winds become lighter and more southwesterly.

Temperatures will remain rather cold through Wednesday with daytime highs mostly in the 30s and lows tonight ranging from the mid teens to the mid 20s.

Snow and flurries fell over most of northern Ohio during the night, with locally heavy snow squalls dumping three to five inches in the snow belt along Lake Erie east of Cleveland.

Interstate 90 was snow-covered and slippery in Ashtabula County early today with reports of trucks jackknifed and a number of other traffic-related problems. No schools were closed and traffic continued moving slowly on the Interstate.

Joan Baez Plans Trip To Belfast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Folksinger Joan Baez says she's going to Belfast to help try to end the violence in Northern Ireland.

"It's a cause that's tailor-made for beliefs I've had since I was 9 or 10 years old," the 34-year-old pacifist told a news conference Monday. "I expect to have a very good time there and to be very frightened."

Miss Baez said she will leave today for two weeks of rallies and marching at the invitation of the Peace People of Ireland, a nonviolent movement organized by Protestant and Catholic women.

gasoline averages 61.5 cents per gallon for the upcoming four-day weekend, down four tenths of one cent from Labor Day, traditional end of the heavy-travel season. Premium gasoline averages 65.8 cents per gallon, down from 66 cents, and unleaded 63.8 cents, down from 63.9 cents, AAA said.

Diesel fuel is averaging 53.3 cents a gallon, the association said.

The association said its survey indicated that motorists should find adequate supplies of all grades over the long weekend.

Over 70 per cent of the stations surveyed said they planned to be open on the holiday itself, Thursday, Nov. 25; more than half indicated they would pump gas after 6 p.m. that day; all said normal operating hours would be observed on Friday and Saturday, and only 20 per cent said they would be closed on Sunday.

At least 15 per cent of the stations contacted said they would remain open around the clock throughout the four-day weekend.

The highest prices found in the survey were in Mammoth Lakes, Calif., where regular grade fuel was 75.9 cents per gallon, premium 79.9 and unleaded 77.9.

Lowest prices were found in the Houston and Beaumont, Tex., areas, where a gallon of regular sold for 45.9 cents, premium 50.9 cents and unleaded 49.9 cents.

On a regional basis, the highest prices per gallon were found in the Mountain states of Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming, where regular was 64.6 cents per gallon, premium 68.5 cents and unleaded 66.6 cents.

Area Gridders Gain District Honors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tim O'Cain, playoff finalist Gahanna's splendid junior tailback, and Jeremiah Gunn, perhaps Groveport's greatest end ever, are The Associated Press' Ohio Central District Players of the Year in Class AAA high school football.

O'Cain, 5-foot-10 and 168 pounds, has piled up 1,367 yards rushing this season for the Lions, third ranked in the state and facing a championship assignment Friday night against No. 1 Cincinnati Moeller.

His coach, Bob Starr, rates the 6-2, 205-pound Gunn, a two-way senior, as the greatest end in the school's history, even better than Pat Curto and Steve Groves. Curto played at Ohio State and Groves at Ohio University.

Gunn caught 16 passes for 281 yards and six touchdowns and, on defense, came up with four interceptions.

Bob Fearing, turning around Columbus Brookhaven's sagging program, earned Central District Class AAA Coach of the Year laurels.

Fearing produced a 7-2 record this fall, the Bearcats' first winning season since 1965. Brookhaven lost all nine of its games in 1975.

In Class AA, Coach Tim Kidwell of Johnstown, Columbus Ready two-way back John Cacchio and Pickerington lineman Jack Neal won the top area laurels in a vote by a district panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

In Class A, Canal Winchester end Neal Seymour was the Lineman of the Year for the second straight time. The back honors went to Wayne Hairston of Licking Heights while Jerry Widder of Marion Catholic earned the coaching crown.

Cacchio, a 6-1, 175-pound senior, was outstanding both ways for Ready. He had 1,032 yards rushing for a 7.5-yard average and returned eight interceptions for 162 yards, a season high in the Greater Columbus area.

Kidwell went 1-9 last fall and came back with a 7-3 record this time as Johnstown tied for second place with Licking Heights in the Licking County League.

Hairston, a 6-3, 205-pound senior, averaged 162.7 yards rushing in 10 games for Licking Heights. He had 1,478 in nine league games, a record.

Seymour, a 6-3, 200-pound senior, was first team all-state last fall.

Widder, who has had three undefeated seasons in six seasons, led a vastly rebuilt Marion Catholic to an 8-1-0 campaign. He has a 35-6-1 record at the Marion school with all the setbacks to Class AA opponents.

The Associated Press' 1976 Ohio Central District high school allstar football team, selected by an area panel of sports writers and broadcasters:

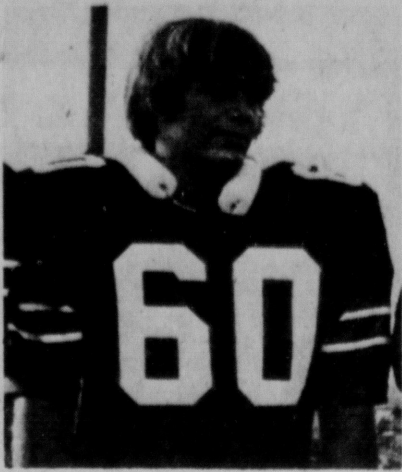

Three Pickaway County gridders received top honors when they were named to first team berths on the All-Central District team. Bryan Price and Earl Stevenson both gained offensive line positions while Joe Berger of the Teays Valley Vikings was selected as a defensive end spot.

Colts Edge Dolphins

MIAMI (AP) — Mike Barnes, who knew little glory in the Orange Bowl while toiling for the University of Miami, surfaced as a hero Monday night in the Baltimore Colts' 17-16 victory over the Miami Dolphins.

The 6-foot-6, 256-pound defensive tackle blocked Garo Yepremian's conversion kick with 12 seconds to play, preserving the victory and first place for the Colts in the American Football Conference's Eastern Division.

"You can't have a game that means more than this did," said Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones. "It makes no difference, one point or 100. The W (Win) on the board is what counts."

The victory gave the Colts a 9-2 record and kept them one game ahead of New England in the tight division race.

"It's a matter of trying every time, and sometimes you get one," said Barnes of his leap to knock down Yepremian's kick. "The Dolphins scare me. They're a great team. But you're lucky sometimes."

Miami's Jim Langer, centering the ball because of an ankle injury to Bob Kuechenberg, blamed himself for the block because of a low snap. "I just blew it," Langer said. "It's my fault."

Yepremian blamed the miss on "timing." But holder Earl Morrall said, "It didn't seem like that bad a kick. They got three or four guys' hands in the air and it's just one of those things."

The miss came after quarterback Bob Griese had moved the Dolphins 69 yards in four plays to a touchdown, 41 yards coming on a pass to Duriel Harris at the Colts' four-yard line. The score came two plays later on a three-yard lunge by Benny Malone.

"It's a tough way to lose," said Miami Coach Don Shula, whose club fell to a 5-6 record and out of playoff contention. "Our team deserved better than what it got."

Jones, who shredded Miami's secondary for 13 completions in 20 attempts and 234 yards, did not agree with Shula.

"We deserved to win," insisted

Jones, who passed 25 yards to tight end Raymond Chester for what proved to be the winning touchdown. "If anything, we didn't deserve to lose."

The Colts' other scores came on a six-yard run by Lydell Mitchell and a 27-yard field goal by Toni Linhart. Miami scored on a 20-yard touchdown pass from Griese to Jim Mandich and on a 20-yard Yepremian field goal.

Mitchell ran 20 times for 80 yards for a season total of 1,019 yards — his second straight year over 1,000 yards. He also caught three passes for 42 yards for a season total of 45 receptions for 462 yards.

Jackson Still Not Signed

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson is a tough man to pitch to.

American League hurlers have known that for years and American and National League owners are personally finding that out these days.

The latest of these was George Steinbrenner, who runs the New York Yankees. Hoping to sign the celebrated free agent, Steinbrenner lunched with Jackson Monday, ostensibly to talk contract, then waited in line with the others.

Jackson, a slugging outfielder during the baseball season, is a long-distance runner this week. On Wednesday, he will jump to Chicago and talk contract with hamburger king Ray Kroc, owner of the San Diego Padres.

The Yankees and Padres are two of four teams apparently willing to meet Jackson's highpriced salary demands. Jackson, who reportedly wants a five-year, multi-faceted deal that would earn him close to $3 million, spent the weekend in Montreal talking with Expos Chairman of the Board Charles Bronfman.

The Baltimore Orioles, Jackson's team last season, also are interested in signing the 30-year-old outfielder.

Circleville Athletes Honored At Fall Sports Banquet

TOPS — Circleville athletes gaining most valuable players awards in their respective sports were: from the left, Mike McKelvey, golf; Sue Radcliff, tennis; Bryan Price, football; Natalie Martin, volleyball; and Dave Uland, cross country. The awards were made at the Booster Club Fall Sports Banquet Monday night.

Five Circleville athletes received top honors at the annual Booster Club Fall Sports Banquet Monday night at the high school for their performances in their respective sports during the 1976 season.

Receiving most valuable player awards before a large crowd in the school auditorium were: Sue Radcliff, girls tennis; Natalie Martin, girls volleyball; Bryan Price, football; Mike McKelvey, golf; and Dave Uland, cross country.

Honored for being named to the All-South Central Ohio League teams and receiving trophies from the Circleville Boosters were: Brenna Lintner, Sue Stevenson and Natalie Martin, girls volleyball; Bryan Price and Earl Stevenson, football; Mike McKelvey, golf.

Other awards received by the Tiger athletes were: Karen Lundberg, most improved girls reserve volleyball player; Dave Uland, All-Central District Cross Country team; Earl Stevenson, American Legion outstanding lineman award, Gold Helmet Award for Hillsboro game, best defensive lineman named by Circleville coaches; Bill Mogan, best offensive back named by Circleville coaches, Gold Helmet Award for Wilmington game; Brad Allison, WNRE offensive back, most improved player by coaches; Bryan Price, best offensive lineman by coaches; Brian Fath, best defensive back by coaches; Art Davis, Coaches Award; Frank Merrill, Gold Helmet for Teays Valley game; Mark Albright, WNRE offensive lineman.

Coach Joy O'Brien introduced her SCOL championship volleyball team which captured league honors with a record of 6-0. She also presented the Tiger reserves who finished the season with a mark of 11-3.

Doris Gillespie, cheerleader advisor, presented the varsity and reserve girls who do so much for the school's athletic programs and seldom get the credit that they so richly deserve.

Coach Dan Campbell reviewed the girls tennis season and presented his players to the crowd.

The golf squad was introduced and reviewed by coach Steve Brudzinski. Coach Jim Diltz introduced his 1976 cross country team and discussed the past season.

Head football coach and athletic director Larry Cook introduced his coaching staff, Jim Lint, Dale Harger, Tom Cole and Ron Malone. He then reviewed the past season and introduced the players to the crowd.

John Farthing did an excellent job of performing the duties of master of ceremonies while Paul Howley of the Boosters handled the opening and closing remarks.

Ed Dumm did a fine job of presenting the awards while John Icenhour presented the American Legion trophy.

William Camp gave the invocation and benediction.

Griffin, Clark 1-2 Punch For Bengals

CINCINNATI (AP) — The development of the one-two punch of running backs Archie Griffin and Boobie Clark could be just the weapons the Cincinnati Bengals need for the showdown here Sunday with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Griffin ran for 139 yards last Sunday and Clark piled up 91 yards in Cincinnati's squaker over the Kansas City Chiefs, 27-24 last Sunday.

The Bengals have been beaten four straight times by the Steelers although they continue to lead the Central Division of the American Conference of the National Football League.

Cincinnati's record is 9-2 but the two-time Super Bowl champion Steelers have won six straight games after dropping four of their first five and Pittsburgh remains in second place. The earlier meeting in Pittsburgh lauded the current Steelers winning spree.

Vikings Open Tonight

The bleachers have all been dusted off, tennis shoes are tied up tight, and tonight referee will throw the first jump ball up into the air, sending the teams of Pickaway County hustling down the 1976-77 basketball trail.

The season inaugural is tonight at Teays Valley High School with Bob Hoover sending his charges against Butch Kobel's Logan Elm Braves.

According to Hoover, "The type of offense we run depends a great deal on what defense our opponents are running." The Viking mentor said that most of the time, his cagers will be using a two guard offense, making use of the pick-and-roll, and occasionally even the run-and-shot offense.

Defensively, the Vikes will be in the man-to-man most of the time, with a 2-3 zone being employed occasionally.

Six lettermen return for the Norsemen this year, and all six are seniors. Jeff Houser, Mike Johnson, Charles Morrison, Tim Tosca, Terry Trego, and Jeff Voss are all venturing out on their final season in the Viking cage wars.

Hoover sees Franklin Heights and Hamilton Twp. as the biggest threats on the Metro League scene this year. To make things a little more exciting, the Vikings face both of those squads in the first week of the season. Franklin Heights' Falcons fly into Ashville Friday night, and a week from Friday the Vikes travel to Hamilton Twp.

Area Gridders Gain District Honors

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tim O'Cain, playoff finalist Gahanna's splendid junior tailback, and Jeremiah Gunn, perhaps Groveport's greatest end ever, are The Associated Press' Ohio Central District Players of the Year in Class AAA high school football.

O'Cain, 5-foot-10 and 168 pounds, has piled up 1,367 yards rushing this season for the Lions, third ranked in the state and facing a championship assignment Friday night against No. 1 Cincinnati Moeller.

His coach, Bob Starr, rates the 6-2, 205-pound Gunn, a two-way senior, as the greatest end in the school's history, even better than Pat Curto and Steve Groves. Curto played at Ohio State and Groves at Ohio University.

Gunn caught 16 passes for 281 yards and six touchdowns on, on defense, came up with four interceptions.

Bob Fearing, turning around Columbus Brookhaven's sagging program, earned Central District Class AAA Coach of the Year laurels.

Fearing produced a 7-2 record this fall, the Bearcats' first winning season since 1965. Brookhaven lost all nine of its games in 1975.

In Class AA, Coach Tim Kidwell of Johnstown, Columbus Ready two-way back John Cacchio and Pickerington lineman Jack Neal won the top area laurels in a vote by a district panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

In Class A, Canal Winchester end Neal Seymour was the Lineman of the Year for the second straight time. The back honors went to Wayne Hairston of Licking Heights while Jerry Widder of Marion Catholic earned the coaching crown.

Cacchio, a 6-1, 175-pound senior, was outstanding both ways for Ready. He had 1,032 yards rushing for a 7.5-yard average and returned eight interceptions for 162 yards, a season high in the Greater Columbus area.

Kidwell went 1-9 last fall and came back with a 7-3 record this time as Johnstown tied for second place with Licking Heights in the Licking County League.

Hairston, a 6-3, 205-pound senior, averaged 162.7 yards rushing in 10 games for Licking Heights. He had 1,478 in nine league games, a record.

Seymour, a 6-3, 200-pound senior, was first team all-state last fall. Widder, who has had three undefeated seasons in six seasons, led a vastly rebuilt Marion Catholic to an 8-14 campaign. He has a 35-6-1 record at the Marion school with all the setbacks to Class AA opponents.

The Associated Press' 1976 Ohio Central District high school allstar football team, selected by an area panel of sports writers and broadcasters:

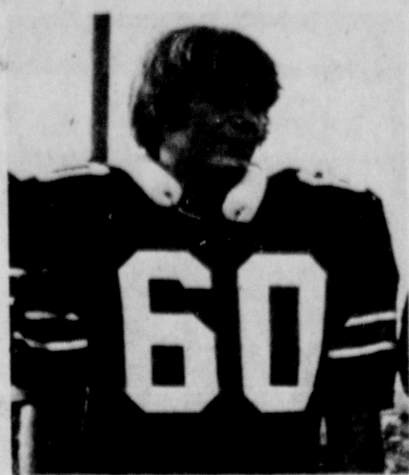

Three Pickaway County gridders received top honors when they were named to first team berths on the All-Central District team. Bryan Price and Earl Stevenson both gained offensive line positions while Joe Berger of the Teays Valley Vikings was selected as a defensive end spot.

Colts Edge Dolphins

MIAMI (AP) — Mike Barnes, who knew little glory in the Orange Bowl while toiling for the University of Miami, surfaced as a hero Monday night in the Baltimore Colts' 17-16 victory over the Miami Dolphins.

The 6-foot-6, 256-pound defensive tackle blocked Garo Yepremian's conversion kick with 12 seconds to play, preserving the victory and first place for the Colts in the American Football Conference's Eastern Division.

"You can't have a game that means more than this did," said Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones. "It makes no difference, one point or 100. The W (Win) on the board is what counts."

The victory gave the Colts a 9-2 record and kept them one game ahead of New England in the tight division race.

"It's a matter of trying every time, and sometimes you get one," said Barnes of his leap to knock down Yepremian's kick. "The Dolphins scare me. They're a great team. But you're lucky sometimes."

Miami's Jim Langer, centering the ball because of an ankle injury to Bob Kuechenberg, blamed himself for the block because of a low snap. "I just blew it," Langer said. "It's my fault."

Yepremian blamed the miss on "timing." But holder Earl Morrall said, "It didn't seem like that bad a kick. They got three or four guys' hands in the air and it's just one of those things."

The miss came after quarterback Bob Griese had moved the Dolphins 69 yards in four plays to a touchdown, 41 yards coming on a pass to Duriel Harris at the Colts' four-yard line. The score came two plays later on a three-yard lunge by Benny Malone.

"It's a tough way to lose," said Miami Coach Don Shula, whose club fell to a 5-6 record and out of playoff contention. "Our team deserved better than what it got."

Jones, who shredded Miami's secondary for 13 completions in 20 attempts and 234 yards, did not agree with Shula.

"We deserved to win," insisted

Jones, who passed 25 yards to tight end Raymond Chester for what proved to be the winning touchdown. "If anything, we didn't deserve to lose."

The Colts' other scores came on a six-yard run by Lydell Mitchell and a 27-yard field goal by Toni Linhart. Miami scored on a 20-yard touchdown pass from Griese to Jim Mandich and on a 20-yard Yepremian field goal.

Mitchell ran 20 times for 80 yards for a season total of 1,019 yards — his second straight year over 1,000 yards. He also caught three passes for 42 yards for a season total of 45 receptions for 462 yards.

Jackson Still Not Signed

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson is a tough man to pitch to.

American League hurlers have known that for years and American and National League owners are personally finding that out these days.

The latest of these was George Steinbrenner, who runs the New York Yankees. Hoping to sign the celebrated free agent, Steinbrenner lunched with Jackson Monday, ostensibly to talk contract, then waited in line with the others.

Jackson, a slugging outfielder during the baseball season, is a long-distance runner this week. On Wednesday, he will jump to Chicago and talk contract with hamburger king Ray Kroc, owner of the San Diego Padres.

The Yankees and Padres are two of four teams apparently willing to meet Jackson's highpriced salary demands. Jackson, who reportedly wants a five-year, multi-faceted deal that would earn him close to $3 million, spent the weekend in Montreal talking with Expos Chairman of the Board Charles Bronfman.

The Baltimore Orioles, Jackson's team last season, also are interested in signing the 30-year-old outfielder.

Rebuilding Tigers Open Play In SCOL Preview Tonight

With the loss of five of the first six players from last year's regional finalist, coach Jim Bailey and his Circleville Tigers are in for a rebuilding year, but fortunately have the prospects with ability to get things done as soon as they gain a little experience.

"Ours is a team with which we must be patient because we lack experience," Circleville coach Bailey commented. "Two of our seniors on whom we are counting have played only one year of organized basketball. However, we are optimistic that our present crop of Tigers will carry on our tradition of basketball excellence."

"It is a fact at this point in time that our young men have been willing to pay the price. They will make mistakes but they will be the ones that come from eager enthusiasm. We are not big in any sense except, we hope, inside where size counts the most. We are confident that we will get excellent guard play from our senior co-captains Frank Merrill and Tom Taylor who have skills and experience," Bailey said.

"To conclude, we are an inexperienced team full of question marks. We are optimistic and excited because we have a large squad of hard-nosed, hustling young men. We promise only one thing — We will play hard — We are the Tigers."

Four lettermen will form the nucleus of the 1976-77 Tigers. In addition to Merrill, 6-foot, senior, and Taylor, 5-foot-10, senior, Rusty Holbrook, 6-foot, senior forward, is back and Brent Wright, 6-foot-4½, senior center, is a transfer letterman from Adena High School.

Other seniors bidding for berths are: Tim Milstead, 6-foot-1, forward-center; and Eric Pontious, 6-foot, forward.

Junior members on the 16-man varsity squad are: Mark Albright, 5-foot-11, forward-center; Mark Beck, 6-foot, forward-center; Toren Bensonhaver, 6-foot, forward; Mike Brudzinski, 5-foot-10½, guard-forward; Dave Cherrington, 5-foot-7, guard; Mike Cox, 5-foot-9, guard; Mike Edgington, 5-foot-11, guard; Dave Holbrook, 5-foot-10, guard-forward; Roy Huffer, 5-foot-4, guard; Dave Marshall, 5-foot-11, guard.

Trainers will be Bob Bevan and Jim Groves with Craig Schein handling the managers duties. Pam Pontious, Kim Thomas, Paula Tussing, Jane Cole, Amy Schneider and Sue Parks compiling the statistics.

The varsity cheerleaders will be: Betsy Ankrom, Lisa Hughes, Lisa Lintner, Pat Caruso, Susan Hill and Teresa Tomlinson with Doris Gillespie serving as the cheerleader advisor.

Rounding out the Circleville boys coaching staff are: Dennis Stewart, reserves; Jim Diltz, ninth grade; Ty Ankrom, eighth grade and Ron Malone, seventh grade.

Coach Bailey feels that the strength of the Tigers will be quickness, speed, shooting team attitude, excellent senior leadership and much improved over-all depth.

According to coach Bailey the Tigers defense will be the foundation of success. It will consist of various types of man to man pressure featuring the "massacre" defense which will not let up.

The offense is based on the fact that short shots go in more often than long shots and the Tigers will be looking for the lay up and short jumper. It will be built on rapid movement of both men and ball on a disciplined fast break. The keys to the offense will be poise, penetration, precision, pressure and patience in an effort to get the good shot.

"Our first goal is of course to represent our school and community in a first class way," Bailey stated. "Our next goal is to be an outstanding tournament team as this tests how much a team has improved. Improvement is what education is about."

As far as opposition goes, Bailey feels that the South Central Ohio League will be well balanced with Hillsboro, Miami Trace, Wilmington, Washington C.H. and Madison Plains all having returning strength. Greenfield is rebuilding, the same as Circleville.

He also feels that St. Charles, Mohawk, Bexley, Elgin, Fairfield Union, Lakewood and Johnstown should be strong teams in the Central District.

Making up the 16-man all-sophomore reserve squad of coach Dennis Stewart are: Tyler Callihan, 5-foot-2; Carey Dean, 6-foot-4; Richard Elsea, 6-foot; Peter Harrison, 6-foot-1; Donald Hill, 5-foot-10; Harry Keller, 5-foot-10; Dennis Lester, 5-foot-11; Richard Pfeleger, 5-foot-7; Tim Pontious, 6-foot; Patrick Poorman, 5-foot-7; Karl Prudy, 5-foot-9; Mark Ranck, 5-foot-6; Brian Sealock, 5-foot-8; Monte Shaffer, 5-foot-10; Jeff Strawser, 5-foot-11; Glenn Yapple, 5-foot-11.

Dave Hoover and Rod Young will be the reserve managers while Jenny Yocum, Tammy Jacobs, Peggy Uland, Sherry Leist, Dianna Moore and Connie Royster will be the reserve cheerleaders.

Circleville will see its first action of the season 6:45 p.m. tonight when the Tigers face the Hurricane of Wilmington in the South Central Ohio League preview at Washington C.H.

The regular season opener for the Tigers will be Saturday night at the Mill St. gym when the Braves of Logan Elm come to town. Doors will open at 6 p.m. with the reserve game getting underway at 6:30 p.m.

Circleville will play all of its home games this season at the Mill St. gym instead of at the high school.

Logan Elm High School held its annual fall sports banquet at McDowell Exchange School Monday evening, and quite a feast it was. Hundreds of people enjoyed tables full of food, and a lot of good fellowship also.

P. J. Ryal of WNRE radio was the master of ceremonies for the evening. Roger Hobbie, President of the Logan Elm board of education, gave the invocation and benediction. Athletic Director Paul Brown gave the welcome at the start of the evening.

Junior High cheerleaders and the junior high football team were introduced. Advisor for the cheerleaders this year is Melanie Rubin. Junior High football coaches are Dan Boyd and John Corcoran.

Harry Hoffer presented his golf team for this season, and praised the team for their hard work and dedication to winning this year. The award for the most improved golfer went to Paul Noggle, and Randy Watkins copped the most valuable player award for the linksters.

Reserve and varsity volleyball awards were presented by Paul Brown, who filled in for Head Coach Kathi Thompson. Krista Gifford walked away with most improved and most valuable player honors for the volleyball squad.

Reserve and varsity cheerleaders were introduced for the crowd. The reserve cheerleaders presented rosebuds to all the members of the varsity squad.

Head football Coach Bill Frost then presented the awards to his football squad for 1976. John Scanlan received the award from the coaches for most coachable, while Jim McGuire and Larry Smith received most improved player awards.

Jerry Scanlan walked off with most of the honors at the fete. The hard-charging fullback-linebacker for the Braves received the Coca-Cola Golden Helmet award, the most valuable player award for the 1976 season, and he was re-elected by his teammates to serve as a tri-captain for next season. His two mates chosen as the other captains were Lynn Strehle and Rock Huggins. Huggins also was chosen as the Braves outstanding offensive lineman, and Rick McCain got the same award for his leadership on the defensive unit. McCain also was awarded the American Legion Outstanding Lineman trophy.

Coach Frost also revealed that Huggins, Tim Justus, and Scanlan had been chosen as All-County players by the American Legion. Frost also recognized his assistants this season. They were Steve Barney, Jan Hurd, and Stan Wilamowski.

Bob Brudzinski Top Ohio State Player

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Senior Bob Brudzinski was saluted as Ohio State's most valuable player for the 1976 football season Monday night.

Brudzinski, who helped guide the Buckeyes to an 8-2-1 record and a share of their fifth straight Big Ten title, received the award at the annual football appreciation banquet on campus.

"Bob gave us great football all year. He is without a doubt the greatest defensive end in college this year and the best we've ever had at Ohio State at that position," Coach Woody Hayes told the partisan Buckeye crowd of more than 1,000.

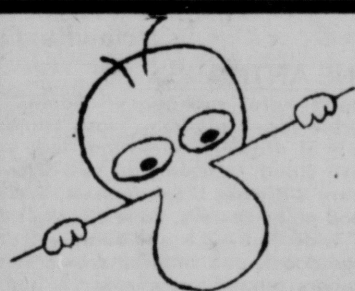

New York Rangers Defeat Canucks, 3-2

VANCOUVER (AP) — John Davidson said he was lucky and the Vancouver Canucks were anything but lucky in losing their seventh consecutive National Hockey League game.

Davidson kicked out 33 shots as the New York Rangers edged the Canucks 3-2 Monday night. The victory continued Davidson's mastery over the floundering Canucks, who have the worst record in the NHL.

Mickey Mantle led the American League in home runs four times. He missed a fifth time when he hit 54 in 1961. That year Roger Maris hit 61.

Casey Stengel, playing for the New York Giants in 1923, hit the first two home runs blasted in Yankee Stadium.

Rebuilding Tigers Open Play In SCOL Preview Tonight

With the loss of five of the first six players from last year's regional finalist, coach Jim Bailey and his Circleville Tigers are in for a rebuilding year, but fortunately have the prospects with ability to get things done as soon as they gain a little experience.

"Ours is a team with which we must be patient because we lack experience," Circleville coach Bailey commented. "Two of our seniors on whom we are counting have played only one year of organized basketball. However, we are optimistic that our present crop of Tigers will carry on our tradition of basketball excellence.

"It is a fact at this point in time that our young men have been willing to pay the price. They will make mistakes but they will be the ones that come from eager enthusiasm. We are not big in any sense except, we hope, inside where size counts the most. We are confident that we will get excellent guard play from our senior co-captains Frank Merrill and Tom Taylor who have skills and experience," Bailey said.

"To conclude, we are an inexperienced team full of question marks. We are optimistic and excited because we have a large squad of hard-nosed, hustling young men. We promise only one thing — We will play hard — We are the Tigers."

Four lettermen will form the nucleus of the 1976-77 Tigers. In addition to Merrill, 6-foot, senior, and Taylor, 5-foot-10, senior, Rusty Holbrook, 6-foot, senior forward, is back and Brent Wright, 6-foot-4½, senior center, is a transfer letterman from Adena High School.

Other seniors bidding for berths are: Tim Milstead, 6-foot-1, forward-center; and Eric Pontious, 6-foot, forward.

Junior members on the 16-man varsity squad are: Mark Albright, 5-foot-11, forward-center; Mark Beck, 5-foot, forward-center; Toren Bensonhaver, 6-foot, forward; Mike Brudzinski, 5-foot-10½, guard-forward; Dave Cherrington, 5-foot-7, guard; Mike Cox, 5-foot-9, guard; Mike Edgington, 5-foot-11, guard; Dave Holbrook, 5-foot-10, guard-forward; Roy Huffer, 5-foot-4, guard; Dave Marshall, 5-foot-11, guard.

Trainers will be Bob Bevan and Jim Groves with Craig Schein handling the managers duties. Pam Pontious, Kim Thomas, Paula Tussing, Jane Cole, Amy Schneider and Sue Parks compiling the statistics.

The varsity cheerleaders will be: Betsy Ankrom, Lisa Hughes, Lisa Lintner, Pat Caruso, Susan Hill and Teresa Tomlinson with Doris Gillespie serving as the cheerleader advisor.

Rounding out the Circleville boys coaching staff are: Dennis Stewart, reserves; Jim Diltz, ninth grade; Ty Ankrom, eighth grade and Ron Malone, seventh grade.

Coach Bailey feels that the strength of the Tigers will be quickness, speed, shooting team attitude, excellent senior leadership and much improved over-all depth.

According to coach Bailey the Tigers defense will be the foundation of success. It will consist of various types of man to man pressure featuring the "massacre" defense which will not let up.

The offense is based on the fact that short shots go in more often than long shots and the Tigers will be looking for the lay up and short jumper. It will be built on rapid movement of both men and ball on a disciplined fast break. The keys to the offense will be poise, penetration, precision, pressure and patience in an effort to get the good shot.

"Our first goal is of course to represent our school and community in a first class way," Bailey stated. "Our next goal is to be an outstanding tournament team as this tests how much a team has improved. Improvement is what education is about."

As far as opposition goes, Bailey feels that the South Central Ohio League will be well balanced with Hillsboro, Miami Trace, Wilmington, Washington C.H. and Madison Plains all having returning strength. Greenfield is rebuilding, the same as Circleville.

He also feels that St. Charles, Mohawk, Bexley, Elgin, Fairfield Union, Lakewood and Johnstown should be strong teams in the Central District.

Dave Hoover and Rod Young will be the reserve managers while Jenny Yocum, Tammy Jacobs, Peggy Uland, Sherry Leist, Dianna Moore and Connie Royster will be the reserve cheerleaders.

Circleville will see its first action of the season 6:45 p.m. tonight when the Tigers face the Hurricane of Wilmington in the South Central Ohio League preview at Washington C.H.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Especially favored now: Success in handling the affairs of others, travel, personal interests. You can accomplish a great deal under this day's influences.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): On a second look at day's program, you may recognize new dimensions, variances you did not know existed - more opportunities for advancement. SO... take that second look!

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Strongly favorable Mercury influences: Your quick thinking and ability to draw speedy (and accurate) conclusions can make this day a big one.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Don't cross others heedlessly or when they are disturbed, unless a matter is truly urgent. Be especially tactful when dealing with members of the opposite sex.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Don't blow up trifles beyond all proportion, and DO be careful not to misjudge others. You could get the wrong angle on their activities through your own misinterpretation.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): What you think will be as important as how you act and react. Control emotions, stress optimism, let your natural exuberance for living shine in the right corners.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Do whatever you can to facilitate work projects. Don't bank on achieving more than usual gains, and you may be surprised with more than you expect.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): New and diversified activities indicated. Review recent efforts to guide you in formulating upcoming plans. Avoid drawing hasty conclusions, however.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Curb possible erratic tendencies. In your usual, competent manner, direct your activities and interests into constructive channels, and don't go off on unproductive tangents.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Serious thought should be given to serious steps. Insufficient knowledge could cause needless failure. Do not try to justify the flaws in your thinking. Eliminate them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Your active mind should relish this stimulating day. Creative writing, literary pursuits and educational matters should hold special interest.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Self-reliance and optimism stimulated. Seek better understanding with associates. Promote sound ventures. Some spending may be necessary to insure gains.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a brilliant intellect; are progressive in your thinking and in your methods; make excellent organizers, administrators and financiers. Professionally, you could excel in journalism, acting, the law and politics; creatively, in literature, music or sculpture. You have strong humanitarian impulses and would be a great asset working for organizations and institutions devoted to charity, welfare and the medical needs of the underprivileged. Traits to curb: moodiness and inflexibility. Birthdate of: Spinoza, Dutch philosopher; William F. Buckley, Jr., writer, educator, lecturer; John V. Lindsay, U.S. statesman.

Views On Tiger

LOS ANGELES (AP) — You saw her winning gold medals in Montreal this summer, courtesy of ABC. Tonight, you'll see her back home in Romania, sharing the bill with comic Flip Wilson, courtesy of CBS.

I have reference to Nadia Comaneci, the world's most famous 14-year-old gymnast. She's the main attraction in tonight's CBS special, "Nadia — From Romania With Love." It commences at 8 p.m. EST.

If you plan to watch it, don't expect this one-hour program to delve into the personal life of the little lady or give any hint how — or if — her Olympic fame has affected her or her family.

The show, made by Wilson's production company and Romania's state-run broadcast works, is a curious, if amiable, mish-mash of various scenes that seem intended to tout Romania as much as Nadia.

It includes stunning displays of gymnastic beauty, gentle Wilson humor, a plug for a Romanian pop music star named Olympia, and several segments that are, well, stock travelogue material.

Said segments show some ladies in traditional Romanian costumes en route to a "ritual love dance." Later, some hearties, also in historic and colorful garb, do a leaping-about dance that Wilson informs us has been the rage in Romania for 2,000 years.

All of it makes this customer suspect a Romanian tourist official rounded up some dancers and told them, "Okay, get out there and look traditional. This is American television."

Whatever the case, neither it nor Olympia the singer add a heckuva lot to the proceedings. The hour gets cooking only when it shows Nadia, her Olympic teammates, and younger female gymnasts not even in their teens, all working out on and off the beams.

Wilson, whose humor at times can be abrasive, is low-key and relatively unobtrusive in this look at Nadia & Co. He acts primarily as a narrator who gently and deftly gags it up with the kids now and then.

Early in the program, you'll see Romanian first-graders training for the Olympics and probably will wonder if that's all they do there — train, train, train.

If they also open school books and study, it isn't shown. A pity. Some viewers may get the impression all the kids will get out of life is a Ph.D. in parallel bars.

But the gymnastics, some filmed in slow-motion, are incredible, particularly the display Nadia's best friend and teammate, Theodora Ungureanu, puts on against an all-white backdrop. It's sheer poetry.

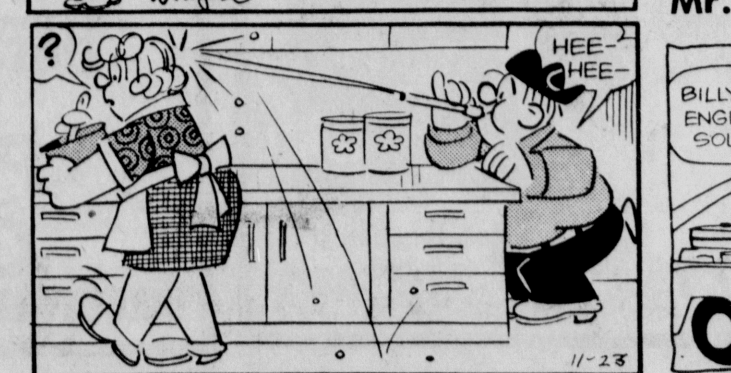

Another fine sequence: The gymnastics exhibition Nadia and her teammates put on in her hometown gymnasium before a friendly, enthusiastic crowd of fans, friends and relatives. Tonight's hour is fairly good. But it could have been so much better had it dumped the tourist stuff and looked at the personal side of Nadia, her teammates and the kids who will follow them.

Swine Flu Victim Said Recovered

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Missouri man who had not received a swine flu inoculation has recovered from the first confirmed case of the disease since a Fort Dix, N.J., soldier died of it nine months ago, officials say.

Federal officials who have been directing the nationwide swine flu immunization drive said there was no reason to fear the isolated case signaled an epidemic.

The man was identified Monday by the Missouri Health Division. Dr. H. Denny Donnell, director of its medical section, said he was "a young man in his 30s in western Missouri, in Lafayette County."

"He has recovered from his illness," Donnell said, adding that the man missed work for several days but was not hospitalized.

He said the man contracted a "flu-like illness" in mid-October and said blood studies confirmed the disease as swine flu. He said the man had not been immunized against swine flu then, but has since had a shot.

"We are in the process of further investigation to attempt to determine the origin, if possible, and the extent and spread, if any, from his illness," Donnell said.

In Atlanta, David Sencer of the federal Center for Disease Control said there was no reason for public alarm.

"We've had cases like this before where people have had contact with pigs, and we don't get all excited about it," he said.

Blood samples have been taken from about 20 persons in the community where the man with the swine flu lives, Donnell said. He said none has shown any signs of the illness.

More than 20 million Americans have been inoculated against swine flu, says the U.S. Public Health Service. Officials have said the program is "gaining momentum," but concern has been expressed about a lag in urban areas.

The program got off to a rocky start soon after it started this fall, with reports of deaths among elderly recipients causing several states to stop giving shots temporarily. Officials concluded the shots were not a factor in causing the deaths.

Ohio Vote Recount Expected

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Secretary of State Ted W. Brown was to announce today final official results of the presidential election in Ohio between President Ford and Jimmy Carter. A recount was viewed as a near certainty.

An aide to Brown said Monday that Carter's margin would be well under the one-half of 1 per cent which guarantees petitioners a recount at state expense.

Brown, a Republican who is Ohio's chief election officer, said he would accede to a request for a recount by a majority of Ford's 25 candidates for the electoral college.

Final results from three remaining counties, including Summit County, were received by Brown's office Monday and Carter's margin was about 9,000 votes out of 4.19 million cast, a source in the Secretary of State's office said. Brown had predicted a turnout of 4.22 million.

Carter's margin would have to be over 21,000 to head off a state-paid recount and even then Ford's backers could ask for the canvass at their own expense.

The last recount of a statewide contest was in 1974 when Gov. James A. Rhodes upset former Gov. John J. Gilligan by fewer than 12,000 votes. The recount showed Rhodes margin growing slightly and Gilligan agreed to call a halt before it was completed.

The process of going back to 88 county election boards for tabulations by paper ballot and voting machine is expected to take two to three weeks. Each side will be permitted to have observers to monitor proceedings.

If Ford should win in the recount, he would still trail Carter nationwide by two electoral votes, unless some other state also had a turnaround.

GM Chief Sees Record Car Sales

CINCINNATI (AP) — General Motors President E.M. Estes has predicted his company will hit record-setting highs for new car sales this year.

"We're very pleased with the start of our sales season," said Estes during a press conference before a speech here Monday. "The reception to our cars has been outstanding. We can't build enough."

"We have encountered a few surprises such as we have sold a few more intermediate than smaller cars."

The GM president brushed aside questions about a possible price increase resulting from last week's tentative settlement with the United Auto Workers.

Estes declined to talk about the settlement saying any comment was "inappropriate until it (the agreement) had been ratified."

The UAW's national GM council is scheduled to meet today in Detroit to review the tentative settlement and decide whether to recommend it for ratification.

On another subject, Estes expressed optimism that big business and the upcoming administration of Jimmy Carter could work together to promote economic recovery.

He noted that one of the challenges faced by the nation is to stop the country's growing dependence on foreign oil and he called on Carter to establish "rational policies to encourage and facilitate the development of more of America's own energy resources."

A Thanksgiving Meditation was presented by Dr. Lloyd Sprouse at the Tuesday morning meeting of the Kiwanis Moundbuilders.

Dr. Sprouse, a former Ohio State University faculty member, is a well-known lay speaker and long-time member of the Circleville Kiwanis Club.

In a celebration of Thanksgiving, the musical group, Maranatha, presented several musical selections. The group, composed of Cheryl Jones, Vicki Grable, Becky Carter, and Mike Grable, is from the Circleville Bible College.

During the meeting, Kiwanians were reminded of the annual Kiwanis Charity Ball at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds coliseum and the annual

Simons Named Rail Chief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Nat Simons, 50, of Columbus, has been named executive director of the newly created Ohio Rail Transportation Authority, at a salary of $29,500 a year.

He now is policy analyst in the transportation department.

Also approved Monday at a special meeting of the five-member authority was the employment of Carl E. Freshour as assistant director. Freshour, who has been serving as acting director, will have his salary fixed at a later meeting, Chairman Paul T. Zellers said.

The legislature created the authority last year to research rail transportation needs in Ohio, and to make recommendations for an Ohio rail plan.

Landon Sees Ford As Party's Leader

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Alf Landon, the 1936 Republican presidential nominee, says President Ford has responsibility for leading the Republican party for the next four years and should make his plans with that in mind.

"You fought a good fight, and on your record deserved to win," Landon wrote in a letter to Ford he made public on Monday. "After each presidential election, the Republican standard bearer has had the responsibility of continuing to lead the party."

T.V. District Planning Special March Election

A special election in the Teays Valley Local School District was considered the best alternative for the bond issue by the board of education and Superintendent Benis Lutz.

After discussing all possible routes the board could take a resolution was passed to hold a special election March 22, 1977. The same package will be placed on the ballot for residents in the district to vote on.

Also, during the regular meeting Monday evening, the Teays Valley Board took action on the selling and maintenance of buses in the district and passed various other resolutions.

The board decided to advertise the sale of three buses. Bids are to be received by the clerk-treasurer by noon Dec. 13 for the board to consider that evening. The three buses are 1968 models and 66 passenger. They can be viewed at the school any time.

The board also discussed the idea of establishing a district operated bus maintenance garage. Presently board members are looking for facilities to lease for this purpose. It was felt that with a 28-bus fleet and other vehicles, the board can operate more economically by servicing them. The buses have always been taken to various garages for servicing in the past. The board will be taking applications for a bus mechanic.

A resolution was approved for the per student rate for the transportation of low incidence handicapped students from the district. They will be transported to Columbus area facilities by John Robinson.

A number of professional leaves for teachers and educational aids were approved as well as a request for a geography class to go to Greenfield Village, Mich. on Dec. 17. The teacher is Phillip Forsythe. Students will pay their own way for the trip.

The board authorized a contribution to the State Employees Retirement System as to the board's share of retirement for a former employee.

Submissions of applications were approved for federal program titles one and four. Orlan Cooper was designated as the responsible administering agent.

Fairfield County's speech and hearing consultant service will be shared with Teays Valley, as well as the Westfall districts.

The board passed an easement agreement with the Men's Club of Commercial Point. To be drafted in accordance with legal procedures will be a way for the club to gain access to property they anticipate purchasing.

A resolution was accepted for the resignation of Mrs. Candace Costas. She is presently on leave of absence but her husband has been employed out of the area. She will not return next year.

The clerk treasurer was authorized to pay non-certified personnel for December prior to the holidays. Teays Valley district principals and Cooper made reports pertinent to their respected areas of responsibility.

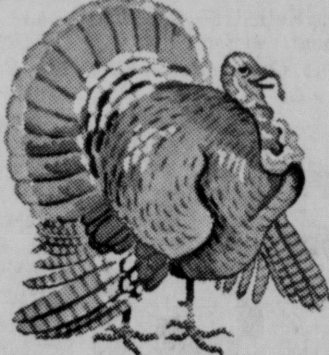

The board approved a meeting change for December due to the holidays. The next regular meeting is scheduled for Dec. 13.
